Price Reports Crisis in U. S. Occupation Of Germany

Must Decide Soon Whether to Abandon Attempt, Findings For Truman Warn

By the Associated Press

Byron Price bluntly warned yesterday the situation in occupied Germany is growing worse hourly and the American Government must decide whether it will abandon its first major attempt to rule a conquered people.

The former censorship director made the assertion in a report on a survey of conditions in the Reich for President Truman. The report was released by the White House. Mr. Truman sent it to State, War and Navy Departments with a request for careful study.

Price called for a reexamination of the entire structure of military government in Germany, including the Potsdam declaration; blamed France for most of the current occupation difficulties; and declared that France should tell the world whether she is bent on dismemberment of Germany.

Germans Nursing Hatreds

The German people "nursing old and new hatreds with mounting bitterness," he said, are "listening hourly" for the voice of a new leader that "desperation may produce."

Among the points made by Price:

"The United States must decide whether we mean to finish the job competently . . . or withdraw.

"We must decide whether we are going to permit starvation, with attendant epidemics and disorders, in the American zone, or ship the food to prevent it.

"We must decide whether obstructions raised by the French government . . . are to be permitted to defeat the underlying purposes of Allied policy.

"The next few months . . . will determine whether the American Government in its first large-scale attempt at governing a conquered people is to succeed, or fail, or abandon the effort.

'Guilt' Campaign Fails

"All of our propaganda efforts to instill a sense of collective German guilt have fallen flat."

Mr. Truman, in a brief statement accompanying Price's report said it "is worthy of the most careful consideration."

The Chief Executive requested the War, State and Navy Departments to give "careful consideration" to its recommendations, most of which Price discussed with newspapermen in an interview recently.

Using what he described as "blunt" language, Price said the urgency of immediate decisions "is deepened not only by the continuing four-power deadlock at Berlin, but by the approach of winter." He added that the next few months will determine whether the American Government, in its first large-scale attempt at governing a conquered people, is to succeed, or fail, or abandon the effort."

Specific Recommendations

In addition to breaking the four-power deadlock, Price also recommended:

1. That the change-over of military government to civilian control should be made with the very highest type of civilian administrators and that it should not take place at the top level earlier than June 1. This date originally was recommended by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

2. Revision of top level instructions issued from Washington to the military government in Germany. "The whole collection of orders and instructions could profitably be rewritten into a few hundred words of general principles," Price said.

3. Provision should be made for the shipment of additional food exports from the United States, on credit, to provide at least the ap-

Unusual Court Tangle

Adultery Charge Crossfire Complicates Divorce Suit

MRS. LORRAINE GREER

MRS. DOROTHY BIONDI

One of the most tangled divorce trials in District Court history yesterday heard one of the three complainants testify that her 4-F husband had told her he was "too much of a man to live with one woman."

He also, she related, informed her that he dined with the woman she named in her divorce suit, "because it was cheaper to eat a home-cooked meal."

Mrs. Dorothy Biondi, 28, of 316 Upshur st. nw., said her husband, David, 29, a Federal Housing Administration employe who lives at 97 Hawaii st. ne., left her soon after he read a magazine article which predicted that, "in a couple of years, the law would allow a man to have more than one wife."

Mrs. Biondi filed suit for divorce last August, charging her husband committed adultery with Mrs. Lorraine "Billie" Greer, 24, also of the Hawaii st. address. Mrs. Biondi is asking alimony and custody of their two children.

Listening carefully yesterday was Mrs. Greer's husband, Capt. Richard S. Greer, 27, of 821 Maryland ave. ne., who filed suit for divorce last January, charging adultry and naming David Biondi as correspondent. Greer is a veteran of 19 months in North Africa.

The case is further complicated by a countersuit filed against her

Lt. Archbold, Naval Officer, Hurt in Crash

Car Thrown 70 Feet; Traffic Toll 5 Over This Time Last Year

D. C. traffic deaths this year....82
Deaths this date last year.....77
Total traffic deaths last year....88

Lieut. John D. Archbold, USNR, 34, of 3905 Reservoir rd. nw., was critically injured in a two-car collision yesterday.

Archbold

He is the grandson of the late John D. Archbold, who was president of the Standard Oil Co., and the son of Mrs. Anne Archbold, philanthropist.

Other rainy weather traffic developments yesterday included:

1. Two new traffic deaths which raised the number of fatalities for this year to 82, exceeding by 5 the total for this time last year.

2. A rash of more than a dozen minor traffic accidents which, with the fatalities, brought an urgent plea from police for more care among drivers and pedestrians, particularly when visibility is impeded by rain.

Lieutenant Archbold was admitted to Emergency Hospital in a critical condition after the Crosley auto he was driving collided with a Buick convertible at Virginia and New Hampshire aves. nw.

He suffered a fracture of the left collar bone, possible fracture of the ribs, possible fracture of the skull, head lacerations and possible internal injuries, police reported.

His car was thrown 70 feet by the impact and came to rest partially on its side on the northeast curb of the intersection. The Buick, which police said was driven by Frederic L. Paterson, 58, of 3701 Massachusetts ave. nw., was severely damaged by the collision but Paterson escaped injury.

A well-known yachtsman, Lieutenant Archbold is a graduate of Choate and attended the University of Geneva and Princeton University where he was a member of the Colonial Club.

Amery Admits Treason Guilt; Death Decreed

British Statesman's Son Is Sentenced Within 8 Minutes

London, Nov. 28 (U.P.).—John Amery, renegade son of a British statesman, was sentenced to death at the historic Old Bailey today for high treason and treachery just eight minutes after he had entered a surprise plea of guilty.

Amery, 33, was convicted of broadcasting propaganda for Germany and Italy during the war, and urging British subjects to join an anti-Bolshevist legion.

His father is the short, pugnacious ultraconservative Leopold S. Amery, Secretary of State for India and Burma from 1940 to 1945 and for nearly a quarter of a century prominent in British politics.

Father Not Present

The elder Amery was not present. After sentence was passed, Amery bowed deeply, turned and walked calmly from the courtroom.

No details of Amery's offenses were discussed either by the prosecution or defense. There is no reprieve from a plea of guilty.

The date for his execution was not announced.

Amery's career as an Axis broadcaster began with the Berlin radio in November, 1942, but in Paris in 1940 he defied his father's plea to "join up" with the British services.

A note of irony was struck in Amery's anti-Jewish broadcasts. His great grandfather on his father's side, Gottfried Leitnar, was a Jewish scholar of the Orient.

Turbulent Erring Life

Amery's has been a turbulent, erring life. At the age of 20 he left Britain in a huff when his family frowned on marriage with Actress Una Evelyn Wing. They were married later in Athens and frolicked across Europe until Paris police caught him up on a bad check charge. All his financial dreams were large but his ventures were failures. One involved a film company in which he wanted to star the late Jean Harlow. It went bankrupt.

He was arrested by British forces in Milan last April.

House Votes $182,800,000 Veterans' Aid

Appropriations Unit Again Overridden By Move to Provide Housing, Hospitals

By the Associated Press

Overriding its Appropriations Committee twice in succession, the House yesterday tentatively added $182,800,000 for veterans' facilities and housing to a deficiency appropriation bill.

It restored by non-record votes subject to roll-call count today $24,500,00 for temporary veterans' housing and $158,320,000 for construction of hospital and domiciliary facilities by the Veterans Administration.

Representative Lanham (D., Tex.) authored the housing amendment. Representative Rankin (D., Tex.) offered the hospital amendment, which the House approved 78 to 49.

The Appropriations Committee had denied both funds with the explanation its regular subcommittee, now holding hearings, should make a more thorough study of the veterans' programs.

With pleas for economy ringing in their ears, House members also faced a decision on whether to appropriate 128 million dollars for local navigation and flood-control work.

Funds for construction of more than 100 projects were refused by the Appropriations Committee in the $1,131,452,312 deficiency supply measure.

The committee leadership is waging a stiff fight against a strong move to restore the funds, which many members contend are necessary to prevent loss from floods and to provide employment.

Representative Kerr (D., N. C.) announced he would offer the amendment to restore the 128 million dollars, and Representative Tarver (D., Ga.) told the House that if this country could lend billions of dollars to foreign nations it could spend a few millions "for our own people."

Bell to Succeed Thom as American Security President

Undersecretary of the Treasury Daniel W. Bell will shortly assume the presidency of the American Security & Trust Co., succeeding Corcoran Thom, who is planning retirement, it was learned yesterday.

Resignation of Bell as Undersecretary by January 1 had been expected recently at the Treasury Department. Bell would not comment.

Bell's resignation will terminate a service of 34 years with the Treasury Department. Born in Kinderhook, Ill., on July 23, 1891, Bell first joined the Treasury Department in 1911 as a stenographer and bookkeeper. He has been Undersecretary since January 18, 1940.

Argentina Elections May Be Postponed

Buenos Aires, Nov. 28 (U.P.).—Argentina national elections scheduled for February 24 will be postponed should all political parties so request, Interior Minister Brig. Gen. Bitter Debates on Capitol Hill

Senate Will Investigate Hurley Charges; House Foreign Service Probe Also Looms

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

A Senate Foreign Relations Committee investigation of charges leveled by Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley was promised last night, as the Senate bitterly debated the resignation of the Ambassador to China.

Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) said he plans tentatively to call both Hurley and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes before his committee Monday.

Senate Republican Whip Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) meanwhile offered a resolution for a more sweeping Senate investigation not only of Hurley charges against certain "professional" diplomats but of American foreign policy on virtually all fronts.

Wherry offered his resolution after telling the Senate the conduct of at least one section of the State Department's personnel as reported by Hurley "seems to me to fall very little short of treason."

Across the Capitol, Representatives Albert Gore (D., Tenn.) and Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.) introduced resolutions calling for investigation of foreign service personnel, the military and civil governments of occupied enemy territory and administration of foreign policies in those areas.

Wherry's speech touched off an angry Senate debate in which Connally accused Hurley of resigning in "pique" because he disagreed with subordinates.

"My view is that he should have resigned and filed charges if he wanted to, but he should not have assaulted our foreign policy, sought to cover it all over with shame and obloquy, and bring upon it the contempt and opprobrium of the people of the United States," Connally told the Senate.

When Connally said Hurley resigned because "two little clerks, assistants or something" disagreed with him, Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) lit into the Texan for "trying to make a jest of a serious thing." Wherry accused Connally of "jocular and hula dance" remarks, and angrily shouted:

"I tell you we need a housecleaning in the State Department of the United States of America."

"I am not trying to make a jest," Connally retorted to Bridges, "but I am trying to show his ridiculous attitude . . . I am not attacking General Hurley's character. I am attacking his judgment."

Bridges said Connally had "no right to attack the character of a great American" and demanded Hurley be called before the Foreign Relations Committee for a full report.

"Oh, we'll get him up here in good time," Connally retorted. "This just happened yesterday. Do you expect me to call a committee meeting at 7:30 in the morning?"

Connally told the Senate that "this is no time for partisan politics—this is no time for political expediency."

Wherry said he was trying to keep partisan politics out of it. The Nebraskan said Hurley's statement was "not the complaint of a carping critic of the administration."

"This is a cool and deliberate charge by the Ambassador of the

Army Engineer Urges U.S. Keep A-Bomb Ready

Senate Unit Told It Is the Only Way To Protect Nation

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Only by keeping the secret of the atomic bomb and continuing to produce bombs to have them ready for instant use can the United States protect itself against this new weapon, Maj. Gen. L. R. Groves said yesterday.

General Groves, who headed the Manhattan engineers project of the War Department, which developed the bomb, revealed before the Senate Special Committee on Atomic Energy that his organization is making atomic bombs at the present time. He said production could be continued on a peacetime basis by approximately 35,000 workers at a cost of about 500 million dollars a year.

Full Cooperation Needed

He warned that a system of international police to carry on inspections to prevent secret manufacture of atomic bombs would be useless unless the United States is willing:

1. To submit to inspection at any time of all of its industries and the homes and persons of its citizens.

2. To launch immediate offensive warfare against any nation which locked a factory door.

3. To risk theft of all of its industrial and commercial secrets by foreign competitors.

No Defense Against Bomb

There is no defense against the atomic bomb, he declared, except "to stop the carrying vehicle before it reaches the target." He said he saw "no hope" of reaching and exploding the bomb itself in flight.

"You might stop some," he said, "but you can't stop all of them. It would be like the buzzbomb in England; antiaircraft artillery would detonate some but some would get through. And you can stand buzzbombs but you can't stand this thing."

Groves brought out in two hours of testimony packed with figures, facts and beliefs based on long and intimate association with atomic bomb protection that:

1. The decision of President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada to

Hurley Tells Of Conference With Stalin

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer.

Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, who thinks the American people deserve more information about foreign affairs, yesterday told the story of his 1944 conference with Marshal Stalin in the Kremlin. He said the interview convinced him that, in Stalin opinion, the Chinese Communists "were not Communists at all."

The position of both Marshal Stalin and Foreign Commissar Molotov, Hurley said, was that Russia was not supporting the Chinese Communist Party, that she would support the government and leadership of Generalissimo Ching Kai-shek, and that she desired more harmonious relations with China.

Chinese Surprised

General Hurley said that when he reported all this to the Chinese leaders in Chungking, they could hardly believe it. Then T. V. Soong, China's foreign minister, went to Moscow and in August there was solemnized a 30-year treaty in which Russia agreed to support Chiang Kai-shek's government and agreed further to get out of Manchuria and recognize China's sovereignty there.

"In all justice to Stalin and Molotov," Hurley said, "I must state that not for one moment while I was in China did they ever break their word with me."

General Hurley, center of a flaming controversy over American foreign policy since he announced his resignation as Ambassador to China on Tuesday, told his story at a luncheon in the National Press Club.

Resented House Speech

He disclosed that the thing that caused him to quit his diplomatic post in China and to "commerce firing" was a speech in the House of Representatives on Monday.

Hurley did not name the orator, but he previously had identified him as Representative Hugh De Lacy (D., Wash.), who charged that Hurley had reversed the Roosevelt policy in China and made civil war "unavoidable." De Lacy said further that Hurley and General Wedemeyer "have now committed us to armed intervention."

The big Oklahoman, who was President Roosevelt's No. 1 roving envoy, said that he was convinced that the congressional oratory was based on "leaks" from State Department career men—men who favored the Chinese Communists and

Probers Ask Gen. Marshall For His Story

Want Pearl Harbor Version Before He Departs for China

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer.

Gen. George C. Marshall has been asked to give his story of the attack on Pearl Harbor before he leaves for China as the new United States Ambassador, the Joint Congressional Committee disclosed yesterday.

Marshall and former Secretary of State Cordell Hull were two of the Nation's top leaders singled out for attack in the report of the Army Board of Inquiry into the Pearl Harbor disaster.

Charge General "Failed"

The board, whose report was dated October 20, 1944, said that General Marshall had "failed" in his relations with the Army department in Hawaii in the days just before the Japanese sneak raid.

Democrats and Republicans on the committee joined in a demand that Marshall be given an opportunity to make public reply to the charges.

Hull, in an appearance Monday, bistered the Army Board's criticism of his diplomatic negotiations with the Japanese as "infamous charges."

At Marshall's Convenience

The committee agreed to interrupt its schedule in order to hear Marshall at his convenience, and instructed the Army liaison officer to inquire when his appearance can be arranged.

The committee droned through 4 hours and 15 minutes of Republican questioning of Joseph C. Grew, Ambassador to Japan for 10 years prior to United States' entry into the war.

There were repeated skirmishes over Grew's 13-volume personal diary. Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) thought it would make interesting reading.

So did Representative Frank B. Keefe (R., Wis.). Grew said that all "pertinent" material had been made public and indicated that there were comments on personalities he would not like to have made public.

Keefe suggested that one of the comments in the diary described Dr. Stanley Hornbeck, then political adviser to the State Department on the Far East, and now Ambassador to the Netherlands. Grew didn't tell him.

The tall, busny-eyebrowed diplomat, with 40 years of experience behind him, smilingly indicated he was inclined to stand on his legal rights in regard to that diary.

Committee Counsel William D. Mitchell, former United States Attorney General, said it might take a year and a half to fight the matter

Those Listed For Release Get Notice At Weekend

About 500 to Stay On District Staff; Veterans to Be Kept on Payroll

By Jerry Klutz
Federal Diary Editor

The State Department tomorrow will hand dismissal notices to about 3500 employes in the Office of War Information, the Office of Inter-American Affairs, the Office of Cultural Cooperation, and the Division of International Information.

All four offices were created since the start of the defense program. OWI and OIAA were absorbed by State last September, and have been operating as interim units, pending reorganization on December 31. The others were part of the State Department from their beginnings.

The only employes to be retained in these offices will be those with a permanent status and veterans who have a war service status, and who are classified B-1 under the Civil Service reduction in force point system.

About 500 to Be Kept Here

The Washington staff will be shaken down to about 500 employes—about half its wartime size. Big personnel cuts will be made in the New York, San Francisco and overseas offices.

The four offices will be abolished as of January 1 and a new international information division will be created to take over the remaining employes and activities. This division will be under Assistant Secretary of State William Benton. William Stone, formerly of the Foreign Economic Administration, is now its acting chief.

OIAA and OWI offices in both New York and San Francisco will be merged.

All Information Work

The new office will take over all information functions in United States-occupied areas in Europe. The Army now handles this work. Some few employes here may be transferred to the New York office in the shakedown process.

Congress will indirectly decide how many employes are to be kept. The State Department itself doesn't know the exact number to be fired, since Congress hasn't taken final action on the department's appropriations.

There is considerable disagreement over a five-million-dollar appropriation for OWI, which is favored by the Senate and opposed by the House. If the House wins, there will be an even greater personnel cut, which would affect veterans and permanent employes.

All Hiring Stopped

Meanwhile, the State Department has stopped all hiring and an order has been issued to place all surplus permanent employes in the five agencies transferred to it, in vacancies as they occur.

In addtion to OWI and OIAA, the State Department now has the former Foreign Economic Administration, part of the Office of Strategic Services, and the Army-Navy Liquidation Commission.

It is entirely possible that a number of war service employes who get severance notices will be rehired, but that depends upon the appropriation and the number of permanent employes and veterans

'Really Broad Foundation'

Navy Proposes Security Plan As Substitute for Unification

(Text on Page 2)

By George Connery
Post Staff Writer

The Navy yesterday reiterated its opposition to the Army's unification plan in a policy statement which it described as more sharply defining its own attitude and offering a "really broad foundation for national security."

Secretary Forrestal, who read the proposal at a news conference, said it was drafted in an effort to convince the public that the Navy's viewpoint was positive, not negative.

"For the future and particularly in view of discoveries in the field of atomic energy, the Navy believes that an over-all, rather than a piecemeal, national security plan should be evolved to remedy not only past deficiencies but also to provide for the foreseeable future," the statement said.

It said particular emphasis should be given to the integration of all elements of national security, a central research and development agency and a central intelligence service.

Forrestal said he was "deeply

Navy's Statement On Single Command

Text of the Navy Department's statement pertaining to unification of the armed forces follows:

A STATEMENT OF THE NAVY POSITION ON NATIONAL SECURITY

We were victorious in this war thanks to this democracy's great outpouring of national power. Nonetheless, the Navy Department has recognized the following deficiencies in the national security organization as of the end of the war:

1. Our foreign policy and military policy had not been closely integrated, although progress was being made through the State-War-Navy Coordinating Committee.

2. Our strategic planning and decisions were excellent, although delays were at times caused in the Joint Chiefs of Staff by logistic and other complications, especially where Allied cooperation was involved.

3. Although unified command in the field was usually established, the Pacific command was split, particularly inside the Army, by separation of the Strategic Air Forces not only from the other Army Air Forces but also from the theater commands.

4. There were gaps in the planning of material requirements, particularly inside the military departments.

5. There were duplications in procurement both between the Ground Forces and the Air Forces inside the War Department as well as inside the Navy Department and between the Army and the Navy. Many duplications have, however, been eliminated and progress is still being made.

6. No permanent organization had been evolved to plan for the mobilization of our material resources, productive capacity and technical skills in the event of war.

7. The coordination of the military and other war budgets in the Bureau of the Budget was not as thorough and detailed as it might have been.

For the future and particularly in view of discoveries in the field of atomic energy, the Navy believes that an over-all, rather than a piecemeal, national security plan should be evolved to remedy not only past deficiencies, but also to provide for the foreseeable future, with particular emphasis on:

(a) The integration of all elements of national security;

(b) A central research and development agency; and

(c) A central intelligence service.

Consequently, the Navy Department advocates that a really broad foundation for national security be established, as follows:

1. A permanent National Security Council with a permanent secretariat should be established as an integral part of our Government. It should consist of the President as chairman, the Secretaries of State and of the military departments, and the chairman of the National Resources Board. The Security Council will coordinate all foreign and military policies and in time of war will advise the President as Commander in Chief. This council will also review and determine the security program and budget for submission to the Congress.

2. There should be provided a permanent Joint Chiefs of Staff to consist of the Chief of Staff to the President, the Chief of Staff of the Army, the Commanding General of the Army Air Forces, and two officers of the Navy, one to be a naval aviator. Such Joint Chiefs of Staff will establish unified commands in peace and war and will originate the strategic military program. The subordinate agencies of the Joint Chiefs of Staff should be strengthened and established on a permanent full-time basis.

3. The National Security Council should be assisted by (a) central research agency, and (b) a central intelligence agency, both to serve all departments of the Government.

4. A permanent National Resources Board should be established to make policy decisions with respect to the mobilization of material resources, productive capacity and manpower. A permanent Military Munitions Board (a joint agency), reporting to the National Resources Board, will be responsible for the elimination of duplications in procurement and supply.

5. The Army Air Forces, with particular reference to their strategic functions, should be autonomous. Whether that can be accomplished only by splitting the War Department and establishing a separate department, is a matter for Congress to decide. A single military department should not be forced upon the country to establish autonomy for the Army Air Forces.

6. The Navy must be continued as an integrated service not only with its own air forces (including such shore-based elements as are required for design, training, reconnaissance at sea and anti-submarine warfare) but also with its Marine Corps and related amphibious components. This requires that the Navy Department continue to be represented in the Cabinet by a civilian Secretary with direct access to the President.

This program deals with the basic elements of national security. It also preserves the integrity of each of the Armed Services and provides for the:

(a) Unified strategical direction of the services, both in Washington and in the field;

(b) Effective coordination of procurement; and,

(c) For integration of budgets for national security.

"If starvation comes," as now seems likely, epidemics and rioting will not be far behind," Price said. He said the present rationing in Germany is inadequate "for a people who are expected to work and who have no heat at home and no way to reach their places of employment except by walking."

Asks Greater Local Discretion

4. Asserting that de-Nazification of private industry has gone faster in the American zone than in other parts of Germany, he said the military government should be given greater discretion locally to decide when and how it should proceed in regard to essential services. He said railroads, the communications system and other essential facilities "have been handicapped greatly by abrupt removal of Nazis from key positions and installation of inexperienced substitutes.

5. Discontinuance of the present practice of "screening" spot information coming into Germany from the outside world since "suppression in the German press or on the German radio raises the question how our policy differs from that of Goebbels."

Wrong Time for Decimation

6. With winter bringing into the open "whatever threat of real disorder and rebellion," may now lie beneath the surface in Germany, he said, "this is the wrong time to permit General Eisenhower's armed forces in Germany to be decimated and robbed of military effectiveness by demobilization."

fearful" the Army's plan, now before the Senate Military Affairs Committee, would result in "the opposite of unification." To achieve practical unification of effort, the Navy recommended:

1. A permanent National Security Council with a permanent secretariat, the council to consist of the President, the military secretaries and the Secretary of State, and the chairman of a National Resources Board.

2. A permanent joint chiefs of staff, consisting of the President's chief of staff, Army chief of staff, head of Army Air Forces and two naval officers, one of whom would be an aviator.

3. Assistance to the Security Council from a central intelligence agency, both to serve all departments of the Government.

4. A permanent National Resources Board, charged with policy decisions on mobilization of material, production and manpower, assisted by a permanent Military Munitions Board responsible for elimination of procurement and supply duplications.

5. Autonomous Army Air Forces. The statement added that "a single military department should not be forced upon the country to establish autonomy for the Army Air Forces."

6. Continuation of the Navy as an "integrated service," with its own air forces, marines and amphibious components, and headed by a civilian Cabinet member with direct access to the President.

Secretary of State Byrnes, at a news conference earlier in the day, identified two of the career diplomats who held views different fromfrom those of Hurley in China, and who were transferred.

He said they were George Atcheson, formerly counsel of embassy at Chungking, now chief political adviser to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, and John Service, formerly second secretary at Chungking, now assistant to Atcheson in Tokyo.

Service was arrested by the FBI last June, along with five others, on a charge of conspiring to remove Government records. A Federal grand jury here, however, refused ot indict him, and he was welcomed back to the State Department by Secretary Byrnes, who congratulated him on the "happy termination of your ordeal."

To Check on Complaints

Mr. Byrnes, in his talk with reporters yesterday, said he would inquire into the complaints against Atcheson and Service, since he felt that Hurley's decision to resign was connected with their activities in China. He recalled that Hurley particularly objected to a report which Atcheson sent to the State Department while Hurley was away from the Chungking Embassy. In that report, Byrnes said, Atcheson gave his views on how to promote unity in China—views to which Hurley took exception.

Secretary Byrnes, asked to comment on Hurley's serious charges against the American foreign service, replied by saying that Hurley was one of his very good friends and that he regretted that he could not see his way clear to return to Chungking.

He said the Oklahoman had served with efficiency, and that if he had returned to his post he would have had the full backing of the State Department. Moreover, he said, any subordinate who tried to interfere with him in carrying out his task would have been fired.

Byrnes said that he had talked with Hurley on Monday and felt that he was going back to China. Then on Tuesday, he said, he heard that Hurley had announced his resignation and put out a news release.

Got Explanations

Byrnes said he then called Hurley on the telephone, and that Hurley said he was basing his action on a debate in Congress the day before. He quoted Hurley as saying that he was convinced that the speeches in Congress were based on information that had come from the State Department.

Byrnes, in response to a question, said that there had been no change in United States policy as to China; that this country is now implementing the terms of Japan's surrender, and that United States troops are in China to disarm and repatriate the Japanese armies in compliance with a promise made to the Japanese authorities on August 16.

Discussing Hurley's charges about career men favoring Communists, Secretary Byrnes said that before he had taken over his present job he used to hear that the State Department had an anti-Russian bloc. Now, he said, it is alleged that there is a pro-Russian bloc, and also an imperialist bloc. He said, with a smile, that he supposed there were all shades of opinion in the State Department and he added that this might be a good thing.

Would Improve Service

General Hurley, at the Press Club, was asked how he would improve the American foreign service. He said that eventually career diplomats would have to be trained just as carefully as are Army and Navy officers and indoctrinated with the aims and ideals of American foreign policy. Also, he said, he would give career diplomats higher pay and better living accomodations.

In discussing the Chinese Communists, Hurley said there might be some among them who look to Moscow for guidance, but he thought most of them were just reformers—outs who wanted to be the ins.

"The noly difference between Chinese Communists and Oklahoma Republicans," he said, grinning, "is that the Oklahoma Republicans are not armed."

ATOM

keep the secret of the atomic bomb until an effective international system of control can be evolved "is the correct one."

Must Keep Enough on Hand

2. The United States must continue in operation "everything necessary to keep enough bombs on hand until somebody makes up his mind what we are going to do about it."

3. The atomic bomb is no substitute for the Army and the Navy.

4. The bomb is "an integral part of the national defense" and it is "absolutely necessary" to control it to avoid "national suicide." It is so important that it must be retained "under complete Government control and private industry should have no rights whatever except those which can be given without in any way damaging the national interest."

For Peacetime Uses

5. It is impossible to separate development of atomic energy for peacetime uses from its development for war uses.

6. If the secret of atomic energy were given to the world the United States "would have to be ready to go to war at the drop of a hat on somebody's say-so" that its illegal use was imminent. There would not "be time enough even to assemble Congress in special session."

7. There will be no "push-button war" in the future, although the nation attacked by surprise "would be very hard hit."

8. If a number of atomic bombs were planted secretly throughout the United States and exploded by remote control "we would lose a few million people but the rest would go ahead and win the war."

Power of Bomb

The single atomic bomb dropped over Hiroshima last August 5, Groves said, caused more destruction than would have resulted from a bombing by 2000 aircraft each carrying a 2000-pound bomb.

An atomic bomb of the same size dropped on the Federal Triangle here, he said, would tear out all the interior partitions of the buildings and fill them with rubble two feet deep. Destruction would extend from the Capitol north to the National Cathedral and to the Pentagon, which would probably lose all its windows and have its interior partitions knocked out.

The most important effect of the atomic bomb on Japan, which he discribed as "the greatest surprise since the Trojan horse," was upon the morale of the Japanese people, Groves said. He said a Japanese officer described the effect of the bomb as "unendurable."

Brought End of War

"From all we can find out," Groves declared, "the Japanese had no intention of quitting before the atomic bomb was dropped. The people on the beaches were determined to stay in their caves and die there and take as many Amricans with them as possible.

"But the atomic bomb created fear throughout Japan that was indescribable. It was propaganda they could understand. And it was a face saver for the Japanese government to get out of the war."

The War Department, Groves said, would like to develop at Los Alamos, N. M., site of its present assembly plant, a "highly secret laboratory" for future atomic study. Reductions in personnel already have been made at some atomic plants, he said, and some scientists have been lost, but other "good ones" have been employed.

Nations Must Sacrifice

In New York City meanwhile, Supmere Court William O. Douglas said that the release of atomic energy means that all nations must give up some of their sovereignty to insure peace. He spoke before a meeting of the East and West Association's People's Congress.

Appeal Board Here Grants 7 Deferments

The District Selective Service Board has granted the deferment appeals of seven District men and denied those of three others, it was announced yesterday.

Granted deferment in the board's recent action were: Wing G. Wong, 23, proprietor of a restaurant; Harold L. White, 24, terminal manager, Associated Transport, Inc.; Irl Thomas Newton, jr., 22, radio engineer, Commercial Radio Equipment Co.; Seymour Rubenstein, 25, engineer, Navy Department; Avron L. Spector, 23, engineer, Navy Department, all placed in 2-A; Roy D. O'Conner, 20, driver of an American Linene Service Co., truck and Howard Whitehair, 20, truck driver, Curles Moving Co., both placed in 3-D.

Denied deferment and retained in 1-A were: Perry Winegrad, 18, medical student, Georgetown University; Robert H. Bennett, jr., 22, junior engineer draftsman, Wilmotte Manufacturing Co. and Emile G. Bishop, 20, assistant to technical advisor, Mission of French Ministry of Industrial Production.

An American citizen living abroad, and registered with the Foreign Board here, was granted deferment. He was William Gustav-Thomas Nagge, 22, employe of an animal clinic in Alberta, Canada.

In reviewing deferments granted by out-of-town local boards to registrants working here, the Appeal Board confirmed the deferments of eight men in Class 2-A and six in Class 2-A (F.).

Those in2-A were: John Whitnack, 24, medical student, George Washington University; Charles H. Clark, 19, medical student, Howard University; Frederic C. Bachman, 23, medical student, George Washington University; Paul Henry Guth, 18, medical student, Howard University; William Howard Haven, 24, Henry N. McIntosh, 22, Edwin T. Ragland, 25, dentistry students, Howard University and Victor E. Rodriguez-Luge, 21, dentistry student, Georgetown University.

Pastor, Former Alcoholic, to Speak

Dr. Samuel S. Daughtry, pastor of the First Christian Church of Rome, Ga., will be the principal speaker tomorrow night at a public meeting of Alcoholics Anonymous at 8:30 in the Central High School Auditorium.

He died at 2 p. m. yesterday. Leonard Shope, 26, of 2819 R st. se., who police said was driver of the auto whic hstruck him, will appear at a coroner's inquest in his death today at 11:30 a. m., it was reported.

A well-known local musician, Mr. Dorio played the trumpet in many theater orchestras here during the days of silent pictures. Bohn in Italy, he came to this country 38 years ago.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Concetta Dorio, one son, Edmund J. Aurelio, and five daughters, Dolores Dorio, Renee Dorio, Mrs. Iris Marsico, Mrs. Aida Romano and Mrs. Maria Millar.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald yesterday listed as a traffic fatality, the death late Tuesday of Howard Archer, Negro, 39, of 2506 I st. nw. An autopsy showed that Archer had died of a fractured skull, MacDonald said.

The fatally injured man was struck last Saturday by an auto which police reported was operated by Pvt. Harold B. Nail, 23, of Fort Bragg, N. C. He was taken to Emergency Hospital where he was treated by Dr. Richard Peterson of the staff for a cut of the upper lip and abrasions of both shins and released.

That some night he went back to Emergency Hospital after suffering a convulsion, according to police. He was transferred to Gallinger Hospital where he died at 4:45 p. m. Tuesday.

The lifting of gas rationing and the influx of returning servicemen and visitors has tripled traffic accidents here, Lieut. William Liverman, head of the accident investigation unit, said yesterday, while asking for greater care among drivers and pedestrians.

He emphasized the tremendous increase in accidents on rainy nights and days because of poor visibility and asked for greater caution from the public while driving or crossing the streets, particularly in crowded downtown areas.

Mrs. Biondi told the court yesterday that her husband first mentioned Mrs. Greer when he said he wanted to leave her in March, 1943. She said he told her this while they sat in a car outside a hospital just before she entered for the birth of her youngest daughter, Joyce, now 2.

She said her marital troubles began soon after Pearl Harbor, when she discovered Biondi was seeing other women. He was inducted in 1942, and was discharged after three months' Army service.

After his discharge, she related, her husband announced he intended to come and go as he pleased. She said he told her he met Mrs. Greer at an office party given by FHA, where both were employed.

After Mrs. Biondi returned to her parents' home fro mthe hospital following the birth of her child in March, 1943, she recalled, Biondi refused to live with her, and said he would live with his sister until "they could find a place of their own."

It was during this time, she said, that Biondi admitted dining with Mrs. Greer, because, he said, "it was cheaper to eat a home-cooked meal" and he and Mrs. Greer were lonely.

After she found a place of her own, Mrs. Biondi continued, she went to Mrs. Greer's home one evening and persuaded her husband to return home with her. She said Biondi struck her after that, and called her names.

Austria's Betrayal Described at Trial

Seyss-Inquart and Von Papen Squirm As Story Is Bared

Nuernberg, Nov. 28 (AP).—A tale of cold, studied treachery accusing German leaders and their Austrian "Quisling," Arthur Seyss-Inquart, of engineering the conquest of Austria was unfolded today before the international military tribunal.

The American prosecution, methodically weaving a web of evidence to prove the 20 Nazi defendants guilty of planning deliberate aggression, introduced document after document about Nazi plots to undermine the independence of their little neighbor.

Defendants Squirm

The two defendants singled out as the chief architects of the anschluss were Seyss-Inquart and Franz von Papen, both of whom listened attentively—and apparently uncomfortably—as Assistant United States Prosecutor Sidney S. Alderman read into the record their own boastful words as evidence against them.

Sharing the spotlight with them was former Deputy Fuehrer Rudolf Hess, who continued reading his twelfth book in the courtroom as the tribunal announced that a board of psychiatrists had found he was "not insane" in a strict sense of the word, but conceded his loss of memory would "interfere with his ability to make his defense."

The tribunal will decide Friday what his status will be.

Von Papen's Boast

Alderman devoted almost the entire day to Austria. Into the record went a declaration Von Papen made in 1934, soon after he arrived in Vienna as German minister, saying:

"Southeastern Europe to Turkey is Germany's hinterland and I have been designated to carry through the task of bringing it within the fold. Austria is first on the program."

The statement was attributed to Von Papen in an affidavit by George S. Messersmith, now United States Ambassador to Mexico, who in 1934 was American minister to Austria.

The defense scored in a fight to compel some of their accusers to appear as witnesses if their evidence is to be considered.

The latter fight was based on efforts of the prosecution to introduce an affidavit by Kurt Schuschnigg, last Austrian chancellor before the Anschluss. The court ruled Schuschnigg was present in Nuernberg and, therefore, could be summoned.

Letter to Hitler Read

Von Papen's fifth column activities were portrayed in a letter, introduced by the American prosecution, which Von Papen wrote Hitler May 17, 1935, outlining a plan to trick Schuschnigg into accepting Austrian Nazis in the government.

Von Papen proposed to convince Schuschnigg he must accept the Nazis because Austria's independence was threatened by "measures arranged" between Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, leader of the Austrian home defense forces, and Mussolini.

Alderman, calling Seyss-Inquart the "original Quisling," introduced a letter to Seyss-Inquart from Friedl Rainer, former gauleiter of Salzburg, describing the defendant as the "one-man creator of the Anschluss."

Rainer also wrote that the decision for the Nazi putsch of July, 1934, in which Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was assassinated, was "right, but the execution was faulty." As a result, Rainer said, Hitler sent Von Papen to Austria and adopted political penetration.

The court disclosed a ruling under which former Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop will be able to get the testimony of high British personalities who refuse to appear as witnesses. Under the ruling, he will be able to have court-appointed interrogators obtain statements from the witnesses he desires.

The court said that the four Britons in question — Lords Beaverbrook, Kemsley and Vansittart—may come to Nuernberg and testify if they wish.

Enemy Radar Made Useless By Allies

By Frank Carey
Associated Press Science Writer

An eerie form of electronic warfare—radar countermeasures that blinded and confused the enemy's radar "eyes"—helped greatly to bring the Axis partners to their knees, it was revealed yesterday.

The first complete story of a titanic battle in the ether, in which various Allied scientific devices jammed German and Japanese radar sets or feinted them out of the play at crucial stages of the war, was told by the armed forces and the Office of Scientific Research and Development.

It is mainly the story of three ingenious techniques:

The employment of millions of pounds of radio-reflecting aluminum foil, dropped in tiny strips or long ribbons from aircraft or shot aloft in shells and rockets from surface vessels. The foil, giving back an "echo" to searching enemy radar sets, served to screen our craft from the foe's radar beams.

"Radar Sleuthing"

The development of a system of "radar sleuthing" by which the location of enemy sets was mapped all the way from Anzio to Berlin and from Kiska to the China Sea. This was based on devices for detecting and analyzing radar beams of varying frequencies and for determining the direction from which the beams come.

The perfection of methods of radar jamming with which Allied land, sea and air fighters literally gave the "electronic raspberry" to enemy radar-controlled antiaircraft guns, searchlights and early warning systems. Jamming is accomplished by cluttering a radar's beam with radio interference at the same frequency on which the radar is operating. This blankets the radar's viewing scope with grasslike spikes of light which obliterate any target patterns.

It's the same principle as interference on a home radio set when two stations are broadcasting on the same frequency—or when you try to use an electric razor or iron while the radio is turned on.]

Vital Benefits Described

The role that all three techniques played in the Allied victory is emphasized in these disclosures by America's military and scientific high command:

1. Radar countermeasures, in which the United States alone invested 300 million dollars, provided one of the chief reasons, hitherto unrevealed, why the Germans were caught flat-footed in Normandy on D-Day.

On that great day, streams of invisible electron "bullets" were hurled across the channel to jam most of the Nazi radar sets that were on the watch for the expected invasion.

And, under the disguise provided by aluminum "chaff"— a few ounces of which gives a radar reflection comparable to that of three heavy bombers — small groups of airplanes, warships and even tiny motor launches were made to appear as major task forces when viewed on the enemy's radar scopes.

Foe Lured off Balance

Thus, adroit diversionary feints were made possible, luring defending ground troops and much of the Luftwaffe out of position, so that our main airborne forces landed on Cherbourg Peninsula with little opposition in one of history's greatest "quarterback sneaks."

2. Radar countermeasures did the trick when the success of the American program of daylight precision bombing of the Reich hung in the balance because of the accuracy of Nazi radar-controlled antiaircraft fire against our necessarily "tight" formations.

It is now revealed that the countermeasures reduced the effectiveness of German antiaircraft fire by 75 per cent—saving an estimated 4,000 bombers and 4500 lives for the Allies. Hitler's billion-dollar investment in his vaunted Wurzburg gun-laying radars was virtually nullified.

Herr Goering offered prizes up to 200,000 marks (tax free) for the best solution to the problem of aluminum "chaff," or "window" as it was also nicknamed.

Japs Also Confused

3. In the Pacific, radar countermeasures were credited with playing a vital role in everything from protecting beach landings to the laying of mines in strategic Japanese harbors, and from driving enemy torpedo plane pilots dizzy to skip-bombing B-29s through nests of antiaircraft batteries.

4. Finally, on the home front, virtually every man, woman and child played an indirect role in the success of the program. Because it was the aluminum foil you did not get on your cigaret packs and candy bars during the war that was used to make the bewildering antiradar "chaff."

American aluminum foil production was tripled during the war and 75 per cent of it was devoted to manufacturing "chaff" and other countermeasure antiradar material. We dropped more than 20 million pounds of it in Europe alone. It fairly blanketed fields as it fell—and the Germans used it for Christmas tree decorations.

Builder Cites Lack of Jobs To Curley Trial

Anthony La Rocca, New York contractor, outlined to a District Court jury yesterday his futile four-month wait for war housing contracts that Engineers' Group, Inc., promised him in exchange for $13,000.

He took the witness stand as the mail-fraud trial of Representative James M. Curley (D., Mass.) and four other men said to be officers of the company rolled into its second day.

La Rocca described the letters between his office and the Engineers' Group here—letters that claimed priority difficulties and Government red tape were delaying the contracts.

The communications were signed by the defendant, James M. Fuller, said by the prosecution to be the "wheel horse" of the organization, who would drive to a successful close the business deals that Curley directed to him.

Curley Looks Pale

The 71-year-old Curley, elected this month to his fourth term as Boston Mayor, looked pale and drawn yesterday. His lawyers privately expressed concern that he might not be able to stand the rigors of a criminal trial. His son, Navy Lieut. Leo Curley, spent the day in court beside his father.

La Rocca testified that he made agreements with the corporation beginning in September, 1941, for contracts to build the foundations in the Beverly Terrace Housing project at Alexandria, Va., and other defense housing projects at Cumberland, Md., and Norfolk, Va.

Another New York contractor who joined with La Rocca to obtain the work on the Alexandria project, reached the breaking point January 27 after Fuller attempted to stall for additional time and told him "I don't want no from nothing, I just want my money back," according to the witness.

Tax Collections On Par With 1944 In Arlington

Arlington tax collections for 1945 probably will run about even with collections of taxes during 1944, according to John Locke Green, Arlington County treasurer.

Up to November 27, Green said, 36 per cent, or approximately $900,000 in taxes had been collected by the Arlington treasurer's office. Total tax yevy this year is $2,848,000. By November 29, 1944, tax payments reported were approximately $746,000, or about 34 per cent of a $2,243,496.86 levy.

Green reminded taxpayers that the deadline for payment is December 5, and that a 5 per cent penalty will be attached to all payments which are not made by that time.

Manila Terror Order Denied By Yamashita

Manila, Nov. 28 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita vehemently denied today that he had ordered or was in any way responsible for Japanese atrocities in the Philippines.

Testifying in his own defense before the military commission trying him on war crimes charges, the paunchy, bullet-headed general insisted he had not even heard of any atrocities while he was in command in the islands.

"I absolutely did not order the killing of noncombatant civilians or prisoners of war at any time," he exclaimed.

Gripping the arms of his chair he repeated:

"I did not order them and I never heard of them."

With equal vigor Yamashita disclaimed responsibility for any atrocities which might have been committed beyond his sphere of information. He explained that he was a subordinate commander, always under the orders of Field Marshal Count Hisaichi Terauchi, supreme Japanese commander in the southwest Pacific.

The troops which he himself commanded, he said, were withdrawn from Manila last December, when he decided the city was indefensible. Japanese navy personnel remained there, but Yamashita emphasized he had no control over them. Nor was he responsible, he said, for the actions of air force men, marine transportation corps detachments and 30,000 troops of other categories in the Philippines.

The defendant said the first he knew of any mistreatment of Manila civilians was on receipt of a protest from Madrid, relayed through Tokyo, concerning the killing of Spanish nationals. This did not reach him until April, long after American troops had recaptured Manila.

The Philippines Supreme Court meanwhile denied the petition of Yamashita's defense counsel for a writ of habeas corpus which would have taken him out of the hands of the military tribunal and delivered him into the jurisdiction of the islands' civilian courts.

Eighteen per cent of home accident fatalities were children under 5 years of age during 1944.

AP Amends Its By-Laws, Elects 4 Newspaper Members

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—Members of the Associated Press amended today the association's bylaws to eliminate consideration of competitive factors in voting upon applicants for membership and elected four newspapers to membership.

The Chicago Sun, a morning newspaper, was elected to associate membership by a vote of 949 to 34.

Three newspapers were elected to regular membership. They were the Oakland, Calif., Post-Enquirer, an evening newspaper, by a vote of 965 to 21; the Washington, D. C., Times Herald, a morning and evening newspaper, by a vote of 962 to 23, and the Detroit, Mich., Times, and evening newspaper, by a vote of 965 to 21.

Bounty on Foxes, Hawks Proposed To Protect Quail

A proposal to offer a bounty on foxes and hawks, in order that quail "may be preserved for the benefit of the citizens" has been adopted by the Arlington-Fairfax Chapter of the Izaak Walton League.

The proposal was presented by Calvin Helms, past president of the league, who asked fellow members to urge enactment of the proposal into law by the Virginia General Assembly. Helms said that he had surveyed Shenandoah County and had found that quail are "being rapidly decimated by the predators."

The league will meet again on December 18 at 8 p. m. in the Arlington Recreation Center for its annual election of officers.

Man's Death in Fall Declared Accidental

A certificate of accidental death was issued yesterday by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald in the case of Ermete C. Ricci, 61, of Morgantown, N. C., who fell from the third floor of a building at Walter Reed Hospital, Tuesday.

The Lunts Are Busy And Washington Bound; Notes of the Theater

THIS MORNING'S GLAD TIDINGS are that Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne are back in New York and in rehearsal.

It has been quite a spell now since the "in rehearsal" sign last went up in this country on the first couple of the American theater.

Lynn Fontanne

'Way back yonder in September, 1942, it was, when "The Pirate" was set in motion. The Lunts' last appearance on this side was in that same picturesque play, at the Martin Beck Theater, New York, on May 1, 1943.

So it is about time they were getting back and there they are, tuning up Terence Rattigan's "O Mistress Mine"—and it seems to me that title should have a comma in it somewhere, but apparently not—the comedy in which they enjoyed a six-month run in London and afterward took to Paris for the exclusive enjoyment of the GIs.

And now for the important part. "O Mistress Mine" begins a brief, pre-Broadway tour in the Music Hall, Toledo, Ohio, on Thursday night, December 20. Then will follow a week in Milwaukee, another in Madison, Wis., and two weeks at the National Theater, situate between 13th and 14th sts., on E, in this Capital of the Nation.

That should pretty thoroughly allay the anxiety that has been keeping our phone ringing practically incessantly here of late.

Supporting the stars—only the Guild never stars anyone—will be Dickie Patten, Margery Maude, Ann Lee, Marie Paxton and Esther Mitchell. Mr. Lunt, incidentally, is directing.

The New York premiere of the piece is written down for the week of January 21, at a theater to be announced.

The motion picture theaters in the District will be the sole issuing agents of free tickets to inspect the Nazi submarine U-977, which will be on exhibition to purchasers of Victory bonds exclusively from next Monday, December 3, through Saturday, December 8. The 600-ton U-boat, which surrendered to Argentina after the end of the war in Europe, will be tied up at the Coast Guard dock, 550 Maine ave. sw. A picked crew of American submarine specialists, according to the announcement, will be aboard to accompany bond purchasers through the seawolf and explain the functions of the combat devices and intricate machinery of the largest and longest-range undersea raider the Nazis had.

Any vague relationship the titles might bear to each other probably had nothing to do with it, but it says here that "She Wouldn't Say Yes," Columbia's racy new comedy costarring Rosalind Russell and Lee Bowman, will follow the current "Too Young to Know," on the screen at the Earle Theater. Supporting the stars in Virginia Van Upp's amusing tale of psychoanalyst, who went to work on an exotic Spanish dancer to rid her of an oddly contradictory complex, will be Charles Winniger, Adele Jergens, Harry Davenport and Sara Haden.

Give the Girl a Chance

Although Lauren Bacall has been roundly castigated by the critics up and down the land for the dull monotony of her portrayal of the role of Rose Cullen in "Confidential Agent," her "second" picture, which, by the way, will be breaking out again at the Metropolitan once the customers finish reading "Love Letters," there are extenuations.

I recall that when Miss Bacall was a visitor in Washington she was fearful that her screen career, having been launched from the heights with Humphrey Bogart in "To Have and Have Not," would have no place to go from there but down. Her "second" picture would seem to give some support to her gloomy forebodings. Only the catch is that "Confidential Agent" is not "The Look's" second picture, but her third.

Perhaps with cannier showmanship than is apparent to the casual eye her studio is being smart.

Gathering dust on the shelf is a little item called "The Big Sleep"—by Ben Hecht, if memory isn't playing tricks again—in which Miss Bacall also is costarred with the gentleman who is now her husband. That was her second picture, and it is just barely possible that the Warners were of the opinion that two in a row would, indeed, set too hot a pace for a newcomer to the films to maintain. So they sandwiched the business with Charles Boyer in between.

Anyhow, the Bacall shortcomings in "Confidential Agent," one surmises, were more the result of some temporary preoccupation on the part of Director Herman Shumlin than any insistent incompetence on the part of the actress.

"The Big Sleep," it seems to me, should supply the answer—unless it, too, proves to be one!

Monty Proser, coproducer with the Shuberts of the National's "Spring in Brazil," knows his night spots and palaces of gustatory pastiming. As coproprietor of the Copacabana, in New York, he is possibly more expert in the ways of the gourmet than of the theatergoer, to whose tastes he caters only occasionally for friendship's sake and the fun of it. That, at any rate, is the evidence, for when Mr. Proser decided to entertain at cocktails and dinner preliminary to the opening of "Spring," he chose the new Duet Club as the scene of his revel. Herb Sachs' new establishment, nee the Del Rio, as anyone will discover upon a little hungry investigation, comes dangerously near being the Capital's most attractive and perfectly appointed eatery, with the accent no longer on floor show, but on food. If there is a better chef than the Duet's in town, he has not as yet made himself known. Two orchestra's for dancing, and two vocalists, but no "acts." Among Mr. Proser's guests, in addition to Milton Berle and his stellar associates in the cast, was Stirling Hayden, still in uniform and as blondly handsome as ever, but, lamentably, with no Madeleine Carroll in tow—or maybe it's the other way around in that family! Had Monty tossed his levee one day earlier, Morton Downey would have been there, too. He had been the night before. With its new arrangement and decoration, and celebrities flocking around, the problem soon will be how to get into the Duet without a crowbar, or anyway a chisel.

Numbers 7 and 8 are now in. Warner Brothers' Avalon Theater was seventh local picture house to exceed its Victory bond quota, with E bond sales of $23,950 as against a stipulated $21,000, and RKO-Keith's the eighth, with $231,400 in sales to top a quota of $230,000. Next!

Paging-Mr. Noah Note

Okay, boy, bail out the barge, it's time to row home.

Broadway Bulletins

New York, Nov. 28.—General Arnold, who retires from the Air Force next month, won't work for any one company. He'll go to his California ranch to write and be a consultant for a number of companies . . . Gen. Toohey Spaatz will succeed General Arnold as head of the Air Force . . . Monty Woolley is a patient at Mount Sinai Hospital . . . Lieutenant General Brett, who headed the Caribbean Command, will be named Ambassador to one of the Latin-American countries—Peru or Argentina . . . The sister of Mayor-elect Bill O'Dwyer, who came here from Ireland to see her brother elected, is returning to Ireland. Then she'll come back and become a United States citizen.

Monty Woolley

In 1940, when Clyde Pangborn went to Canada to volunteer his services to the RAF, a newspaperman reported that Pangborn was willing to do anything he could—but that he couldn't do anything. Saturday night Pangborn was in the Stork Club after having completed his fifty-fifth RAF mission ferrying big bombers to all parts of the world. He delivered 20 million dollars worth of aircraft without a mishap . . . Bill Bullitt is writing a book . . . Hugo Carusi will resign soon as head of the Immigration Department . . . Harpo Marx refused Ben Hecht's offer to do a talking role. Harpo is busying himself with a new television show.

Paul Porter, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, has an attractive offer to represent the television industry . . . Mayor LaGuardia will receive the Economics Club Award on Thursday . . . Fiorello, incidentally, this week will announce that he will do a once-a-week sponsored broadcast over the A. B. C. network. He still hasn't decided upon a sponsor . . . The trade delegates who went to Moscow report that Lee Pressman, the CIO counsel, complained about the lack of warm water in countries en route. The day after they arrived in Moscow, Pressman said: "Y'know? You can shave pretty well with cold water, too."

Contrary to all the reports and speculation, Judge Sam Rosenman—who leaves the White House January 1—has made no definite plans about his return to private practice as yet. He has a number of offers, but hasn't decided which one he'll accept . . . Decca will release an Orson Welles album, "In the American Tradition," with a booklet written by Howard Fast. It will contain Welles' rendition of Jefferson's Inaugural Address, Abe Lincoln's second Inaugural Address, Woodrow Wilson's speech at Versailles and Roosevelt's war message . . . After 32 operations Cole Porter now is able to walk without crutches and merely by using a cane as he always did.

General Eisenhower recently told some friends that "you couldn't get one out of 100,000 British or American soldiers to carry out such torture-orders as did the Nazis" . . . Eisenhower also added that he wants no political office—that commanding a victorious U. S. Army in battle is the highest honor that could have come to him . . . Mrs. James Farley has lost 30 pounds. Her husband also has taken off weight. Their friends point to this as an indication that Jim will seek public office . . . Hollywood's latest scandal is over a $100,000 welsh by a Chicago merchant who lost money in a gin-rummy session.

Jean Dalrymple, the producer of "Brighten the Corner," sent wires to her friends inviting them to become investors. The fund she needed was oversubscribed. Two of the $500 backers are strangers, who merely wired Miss Dalrymple that they heard this was a play about Navy lieutenants, and they wanted to invest. The two are Navy Lieuts. Richard Rollins and Jack Cowles of 90 Church st. . . . The food allotment per German in the United States Zone has been increased to 2000 calories . . . Before Chicago's Mayor Kelly went to London he sent his corporation counsel as advance man to the UNO, with color-reels of Chicago's parks, cultural points and hotels, in a bid to make it the permanent UNO site.

Sammy Walsh, now at the Greenwich Village Inn, is billed as "America's No. 2 Comedian." When Walsh is asked "Who's No. 1?" he shrugs: "I dunno. They're all fighting about it" . . . Nineteen years ago Jo Davidson made a bronze, life-size statue of Lincoln Steffens' son, Peter, then 2 years old. For Peter's twenty-first birthday last week, Davidson made a new patina for the statue . . . There will be a Dr. Hannah Stone wing at the new Hall of Residence of the NYU and Bellevue Medical Center . . . The "Marriage Manual" which the late Hannah Stone wrote with her husband, Dr. Abraham Stone, now is in its twenty-second edition . . . Dr. Stone, incidentally, visited the Copacabana with Will Durant who, while the rumba-band beat its rhythms, sang Gregorian chants aloud.

Last week Henry Morgan, Manhattan's No. 1 funny man in radio, said: "A drama critic is a guy who is trying to find out what George Jean Nathan thinks, without asking him directly." Mr. Nathan heard this, and replied: "They can't find out what I think, because often I surprise myself" . . . Lindsay and Crouse are being besieged with reminders that the Sazarac recipe used in "State of the Union" is all wrong . . . $30,000 passed hands in a "Pick Your Game" match held in Hot Springs between Joe Ryan and Joe Bernstein. Ryan picked gin-rummy, and then Bernstein—who won $67,000 in Arnold Rothstein's final poker game—picked lowball.

Joe Amory, a 23-year-old bass, entered the Metropolitan Opera auditions last year. Wilfred Pelletier, the conductor, liked his voice and sent him to Renato Bellini, the singing teacher. He then sent him to Canada, where Amory sang the role of Sarasto in the "Magic Flute" at the Montreal Opera. Amory is back in N. Y. To pay for his singing lessons he rejoined his brothers, and now the quartette—The Four Brothers—are singing "Whistling at the Chicks" at the Roxy Theater . . . Staff Sergt. Eugene List, who played the piano for the Big 3 at Potsdam, is on his way home. His wife, a noted violinist, carrying her precious Gaurnerius, went apartment hunting. She found an apartment, but the landlord, pointing to the precious violin, said: "This apartment isn't for you. You can't play that here."

HEDDA HOPPER

Delayed in Transit!

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 28.—Paul Manning, first reported to send out stories from Paris and Berlin, writes me that 10 days before the sneak raid he filed a story from London to his news syndicate in New York saying that Japan would attack Pearl Harbor. The piece was never received by the syndicate; nor were his subsequent cable queries asking what happened to it answered. He was told that British intelligence had taken the information on to our military attaches in London. Their information was relayed "urgent to Washington." Wonder why this doesn't come out in the Pearl Harbor inquiry? . . . Understanding Ann Sheridan is having script trouble over her new picture "The Sentence." It seems originally too much prominence was given the male lead. Annie balked and the story was rewritten to throw the spotlight on the feminine angle just to please Ann, who, after all, could get along without making the picture if she wants . . . Preston Foster has been handed spot opposite Lynn Bari in "Strange Triangle," a murder mystery directed by Ray McCarey.

Ann Sheridan

Weissmuller in the Swim

Lunched with Johnny Weissmuller and Brenda Helser, woman's amateur swimming champion. Brenda said that Johnny's coaching had helped her break three new swimming records. In his new picture, "Swamp Fire," Johnny, who's had only two leading ladies in 13 years, has a couple fighting over him. Then he and his old rival, Buster Crabbe, fight over the gals, and Johnny ends by fighting an alligator just for the heck of it! With 25 "Tarzan" pictures lined up for him, Johnny says he has no desire to shed his jungle role, but would like to move into the Douglas Fairbanks type of action pictures. . . . I've always heard the expression, "Laughed till he busted his breeches," but so help me, it really happened to a sailor watching Ingrid Bergman and Jack Benny wrestle at the closing of the Hollywood canteen. The gob retired to the gentleman's cloister while gals in the front office sewed the buttons back on.

Not Behind the 8 Ball

Hear that RKO is trying to get Lucille Ball back at eight times the salary they let her go at. . . . After appearing four weeks locally, Harry James will take a six-week vacation. He's added a Chicago branch office to his music publishing firm, and plans another for London. . . . Will Price and Maureen O'Hara have been doing the town high, wide, and handsome entertaining Major General Cates, Fourth Marine Division commander and Will's old boss. . . . Ida Lupino, who suffered great personal loss in the war, has received the belated news that two of her favorite cousins were victims of the final buzz bombings. . . . Errol Flynn's rented his schooner the Zaca to Twentieth for "Down to the Sea." After "Escape Me Never," Errol will try escaping himself—on a cruise doing documentary films in South America. Howard Hill, champion archer, is the first one signed for the voyage. . . . With war bond purchases for tickets, it looks like a two million dollar gate for Alan Ladd's radio presentation of "Salty O'Rourke."

Woosome Twosomes

Evelyn Keyes and Mervyn Leroy are becoming far friendlier than friends . . . Lisette Verea just got around to George Jessel . . . With a bachelor penthouse planned to top his new eatery, Louis Hayward is scotching those far-flung marriage rumors . . . Everybody will rave about Bing Crosby and Ingrid Bergman in "The Bells of St. Mary's," but I feel a word should be said about the fine performances given by Joan Carroll, Ruth Donnelly, Henry Travers and Martha Sleeper. Leo McCarey certainly picked his cast . . . After Universal had scoured the country for Red Donahue's educated mule for the new Abbott and Costello picture, they found the critter taking a vacation out in our own San Fernando Valley.

Divorce Rumors Denied

The Dick Haymes are fed up with those divorce rumors some meanie has been planting all over town and wish once and for all to deny them. . . . For the first time since the war actors are permitted to buy their favorite items from set fixtures. Glenn Ford, Rita Hayworth and Charles Vidor have practically stripped "Gilda"—I mean the picture set, not a gal. . . . Judy Canova tells of the producer, who discussing a former headliner, said, "Poor chap, all he is now is a 'was been.'" That reminds me of the time I was trying to dig a story out of an interesting looking extra, and he said, "You think I'm a has been. Fact of the matter, ma'am, I'm just a never was."

Rosslyn Firm Again Leads In Arlington Safety Contest

For the third month, the Noland Co. of Rosslyn is leading 24 other large fleet operators in the Arlington Safety Council's eighth annual safety contest.

The company has recorded 125,425 miles free of accident. The American Oil Co. is second in the contest, with 119,489 miles and Congressional School for Tiny Tots is third, with 98,024 miles.

In six months, the 14 fleets entered in the contest have reported no accidents during 766,275 miles of driving. Altogether, the 25 fleets have driven 2,646,941 miles, with 32 accidents.

At the same time, the Safety Council released its program for the Arlington Safety Congress, which meets at 8 p. m. Friday in the Washington-Virginia-Maryland Coach Co. auditorium at N. Randolph st. and Wilson blvd. in Arlington.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Mr. Hurley And Mr. Wheeler

BY THE TIME this article is published, the Washington correspondents will probably have found out what happened during the late afternoon or early evening on Monday of this week which caused Mr. Hurley to resign and issue his statement. At their interview on Monday afternoon he had given Secretary Byrnes the definite impression that he would return to Chungking this week. Yet a few hours later he pulled the trigger which released the blast that accompanied his resignation. The question is what happened to Mr. Hurley after he left Secretary Byrnes on Monday afternoon? There is nothing in his statement which throws any light on that question.

LIPPMANN

WHILE THIS MYSTERY is being cleared up, we may examine his general criticism of our foreign policy. Like Senator Wheeler, who spoke out the same day, Mr. Hurley believes that we are not pursuing an independent policy in Europe and Asia but are playing a subordinate and auxiliary role to Britain and Russia. But they differ considerably as to what we are doing. Though Mr. Hurley's immediate complaint is against the career men who, he alleges, are "endeavoring to support communism generally as well as specifically in China," he makes the categorical statement that "in diplomacy today we are permitting ourselves to be sucked into a power bloc on the side of colonial imperialism (i. e. British) against Communist imperialism (i. e. Russian)."

Mr. Wheeler on the other hand sees us "appeasing" Russian imperialism, which is rather different from Mr. Hurley's charge that we are being sucked into a British power bloc against Russian imperialism. Nevertheless, both men feel—however incoherently—that in Eastern Europe, the Middle East, and in Asia, the basic conflict is between the Soviet Union and the British Empire, and that the United States is being drawn into that conflict instead of playing an independent and constructive role of its own. When all discounts have been made for the violence and unfairness with which this criticism is made, there is a residue of truth in it which no one can afford to dismiss easily because he does not like Senator Wheeler's record or Mr. Hurley's performance in China.

IT IS TRUE—so it has seemed to me ever since I attended the San Francisco Conference—that, if I may quote something written last May, "the real issue has been between London and Moscow, and it would be very unfortunate indeed if the United States sacrificed its great influence as the mediator, which President Roosevelt struggled to maintain even in his last days. . . . It is of special importance that we preserve our more detached role in the Anglo-Soviet difficulties, remembering that while they are for the moment focused on Poland, they extend in a wide arc through the Balkans to the Middle East and Persia."

This was written at a time when the San Francisco Conference was in grave danger of breaking up because the chairman of our delegation had drifted into a position where we were becoming the head and front of a world-wide anti-Soviet coalition. The Conference was rescued by the prompt action of President Truman, who, advised of the danger, sent Mr. Harry Hopkins to Moscow and Mr. Joseph Davies to London, and succeeded in placing us once again in the position of conciliator and mediator between the Soviet Union and the other great powers.

WE MUST ADMIT that this is a difficult position to maintain, that the role of the mediator power is a difficult one to play. But when, as for example, at the London Conference, we fall away from this middle position, and take the lead as partisans in conflicts which are more directly and vitally British-Soviet than they are American-Soviet conflicts, we dissipate our influence and the whole system of international action becomes stalled.

It becomes stalled because in fact the United States has influence but not power in Eastern Europe, in the Balkans, in the Middle East, and in southern Asia. Power is in the hands either of the Russians or of the British, and if we are to exercise influence under these conditions, it can only be as the mediator in these conflicts, not as partisan and underwriter of the interests or the claims of either of the two empires.

I DO NOT, of course, sympathize at all with Senator Wheeler's fierce animosity against our great allies, and I have no doubt that just such speeches as his make it infinitely more difficult for the United States to cure the very errors of policy which at bottom he is objecting to. If we are not to be whipsawed between Russian and British imperialism, if we are to pursue an independent course which is that of conciliation, mediation, and pacification, we cannot promote the policy by Senator Wheeler's violent hatred of virtually all foreign governments.

He seems to think we can overawe them with strong language, and make them follow our lead by commanding them to do so. But he is mistaken. We are not that powerful, and we shall never be that powerful even if Senator Wheeler should change his mind and be willing to maintain and develop American military power instead of being a persistent influence in the Senate in favor of making the United States impotent as a military power.

Speech On Red Cross Evokes Letter

THE AMERICAN Red Cross, since its reorganization, in 1905, has aided nearly 10 million victims in approximately 6000 disasters. For this purpose it has expended well over 100 million dollars. This did not include the expenditure of local chapter funds for the same purpose. In addition it expended, in the First World War 273 million dollars and in the Second World War is expended considerably over 200 million dollars a year.

The American Red Cross has a membership of from 15 to 20 million adults and approximately the same number of junior members. Considering these facts it is difficult to take seriously the charge that it is undemocratic. It also seems slightly ridiculous to say that the Red Cross is afraid that labor may gain a foothold in its management, since the Red Cross, years ago, put labor union leaders on its board of incorporators.

By its charter from Congress, it is required that Red Cross receipts and expenditures be audited by the War Department.

The central committee, or governing body, consists of 18 members. Of these, the President of the United States, who is also president of the American Red Cross ex officio, appoints 6—the chairman, and representatives of the State, Treasury, War, Justice and Navy Departments. Six are elected by the board of 65 incorporators, and 6 are elected by the delegates of its 3757 chapters. The chairman of the Central Committee is chief executive officer.

THE MEMBERS of the governing body have lately been entitled by a writer as "old fuddy-duddy leaders." It will be interesting to note who these 18 "old fuddy-duddies" are: The chairman, Mrs. Basil O'Connor, was appointed by the late President Roosevelt, of whom he was a former law partner, upon the death of Norman Davis, in July, 1944. The members are Mr. William Clayton, Assistant Secretary of State; Hon. Daniel W. Bell, Undersecretary of the Treasury; Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, Surgeon General of the Army; Hon. Tom C. Clark, Attorney General of the Department of Justice; Vice Admiral Ross T. McIntire, Surgeon General of the Navy; James B. Forgan, vice president and director of the First National Bank, Chicago, Ill.; Arthur Hays Sulzberger, president and publisher of the New York Times; Edward Dana, railway executive and banker, Boston, Mass.; Lloyd B. Wilson, president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Dwight Davis, former director of the Volunteer Special Services, American Red Cross; Mrs. Mason Colt, former deputy commissioner of the American Red Cross in London, World War II, now, director of Volunteer Special Services, American Red Cross; Dr. Oliver C. Carmichael, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching; George L. Harrison, president and director, New York Life Insurance Co.; Charles H. Kellstadt, former chairman of the Cleveland (Ohio) Chapter; Harry L. Hopkins, former Secretary of Commerce; Gurney Newlin, lawyer and banker, chairman of the Los Angeles Chapter; Mrs. William O. Rowland, jr., vice chairman of the Philadelphia Chapter. The approximate average age of the present Central Committee is 55½ years.

THE COUNTRY is divided into five areas to facilitate rapid action in case of serious disasters, and in addition there are the insular and foreign operations departments. Under the regulations of the Red Cross, members of the Central Committee may be elected for only three terms, each term consisting of three years. Therefore, no member of this governing board has served over nine years and the regulations do not permit anyone over 59 years of age being elected for the first term on the Central Committee.

As to the suggestion for State councils, this proposed organization was originally tried by the Red Cross and proved unsuccessful. In all larger States it was found impossible to secure meetings of the State groups. Annual meetings of chapter delegates with the Central Committee and other national representatives were arranged. These meetings have been held in Washington, D. C., Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco and various other localities. During the war, because of governmental requests for limiting travel, the national convention has not convened, though State and regional meetings have been held.

The speaker I quote refers to the fact that labor assistance to the Red Cross has been presented in a "biased light." I see no foundation for this statement, as only the facts of the labor agreement were given.

As to the speaker's recommendation for the future reorganization of education, health, welfare services, that may be left to the consideration of those best qualified from experience to study and plan such reorganization to meet the needs of community, Nation and the world.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

HARRY HOPKINS, now hospitalized in New York, is not improving. Always a living skeleton, Harry kept himself alive because of his love of FDR. Now that FDR is gone, Harry has no more zest for work . . . Senator Claude Pepper of Florida is returning from a three-month tour of Europe to blister the Administration's handling of foreign policy. Coming on top of Senator Fulbright's two-fisted attack, perhaps somebody around the State Department will wake up to the fact that the seeds of World War III can be planted right now . . . The Strategic Services unit of the War Department (it was formerly the "Oh-So-Secret" office of Gen. "Wild Bill" Donovan) has just set up a very interesting project which will not help the peace. It is working on a "Plan for an Order of Battle for a War With Russia." The job is under direct supervision of Maj. Raymond Cromwell, former Tokyo correspondent for the Wall Street Journal . . . Postmaster General Bob Hannegan has told intimates that he is genuinely concerned about the Administration's handling of domestic and foreign problems. He adds that the President is aware of the difficulties and will remedy them.

Inside The Management Parley

LABOR ISN'T the only group split wide open at the Labor-Management Conference. Management is in the same boat.

At the start, AFL and CIO delegates presented a divided front, which made management delegates chortle with glee. Now the shoe is on the other foot.

Eric Johnston, astute president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and usually mild-mannered David Sarnoff, president of Radio Corp. of America, both are storming mad at the more conservative block of management delegates who just don't want to get along with labor.

Johnston and Sarnoff believe unions are here to stay. Also they feel that industrial harmony is essential to reconversion prosperity. So they want to see the conference get somewhere, have carefully refrained from union-baiting.

On the other side of the fence are Almon E. Roth, head of the powerful National Federation of American Shipping, Inc.; Ira Mosher, president of the Tory-minded National Association of Manufacturers, and Charlie Wilson, of General Motors.

The first issue facing the management delegates was on the broad principle of general cooperation with labor. Johnston urged full cooperation. So did Sarnoff. However, Mosher and Roth spearheaded the conservative management group, which wants repressive labor legislation from Congress. They feel that if the conference ends in failure, antilabor legislation is certain.

In his opening address to the conference, NAM's Mosher urged that where the conferees disagree, they "not gloss over" their disagreements. "Let's state them frankly." To Johnston and his colleagues, this was a clear-cut bid to Congress to step in with antiunion laws.

Management delegates have revealed four separate splits in the conference thus far.

Four Management Splits

NO 1 SPLIT was over a resolution to enforce existing labor-management contracts. The unions had agreed that all grievances arising during the life of a contract be arbitrated. This would avoid irritating work stoppages which have been the source of much industrial disunity. The Johnston-Sarnoff group strongly favored the proposal. However, Roth and Mosher opposed arbitration. They had the measure referred back to a management caucus and have kept it buried.

No. 2 split arose in the committee on collective bargaining. The AFL and CIO had presented a joint proposal—the only proposal on which both were in complete agreement. However, when the resolution came before the executive committee, Roth bullied other management delegates into opposing the resolution. He insisted on rewriting the proposal to include a suggestion for emasculation of the Wagner Act.

No. 3 split occurred when Roth and Mosher proposed changes in the antitrust laws and advocated abrogation of the LaGuardia-Norris law which protects unions from paralyzing court injunctions. Roth knew that labor delegates could not accept his proposals. Yet he refused to withdraw them, leading to another stalemate.

Split No. 4 came at last week's executive committee meeting. Eric Johnston recommended that a continuation committee carry on any unfinished business after the conference adjourns. John Holmes, president of Swift & Co.; M. W. Clement of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and H. M. Prentiss of Armstrong Cork, all opposed. In the end, Johnston had to appeal to his colleagues for unity on even this simple issue before the meeting could continue. At this writing the question still is not settled.

New Air Chief

GEN. CARL SPAATZ will definitely succeed Gen. Hap Arnold as head of Army Air Forces . . . Maj. Gen. Edmund H. Leavey will succeed Gen. Charles P. Gross as head of Army Transportation. This may help to speed troop movements . . . Congressman Hugh Delacy of Seattle demands that all American troops be withdrawn from China immediately and that use of all American lend-lease for the Chinese civil war be stopped. He'll have a hard time putting this across as long as the policies of Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley prevail in China . . . Those very cooperative Swiss have now informed us that we can't recover the Nazi loot Hitler stole and hid in Switzerland—if it was stolen before 1940. No. their two-year statute of limitations has expired, say the Swiss, which means that any Nazi who stole from the Allies in the first two years of the war and took his booty to Switzerland can now escape scot free . . . Maybe we shouldn't blame the Swiss too much, however. Congressman Hatton Sumners of Dallas, Tex., has just reported out a bill which would reduce the U. S. statute of limitations to a mere one year (not five as in Switzerland) when it comes to violation of national bank laws, wage-hour fraud, or surplus property scandal.

Medical Journal Denounces Truman's Health Program

Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP).—The Journal of the American Medical Association today denounced President Truman's proposed health and medical program as an "attempt to enslave medicine as first among the professions, industries or trades to be socialized" and called for its defeat in Congress.

"No one will ever convince the physicians of the United States that the Wagner-Murray-Dingell bill is not socialized medicine," the editorial said. "By this measure the medical profession and the sick whom they treat will be directly under political control."

Senator Wagner (D., N. Y.), Senator Murray (D., Mont.) and Representative Dingell (D., Mich.) have introduced a bill to carry out the President's recommendations.

Step in Regimentation

"Let the people of our country realize that the movement for placing of American medicine under the control of the Federal Government through a system of Federal compulsory sickness insurance is the first step toward a regimentation of utilities, of industries, of finance and eventually of labor itself.

"The time may yet come when the American worker, as was the case with the German worker, will have more deductions from his wages than 'take home' pay."

The editorial maintained that "every charge" brought against the measure in a questions and answer hearing on the measure in the Senate recently was "valid and that the actual text of the measure itself is the proof of the validity."

Would Destroy Private Practice

The measure, the Journal stated, would "destroy the private practice of medicine," place the medical profession "under the direction of one man," enforce hospitalization provisions to "destroy the voluntary hospital system," and require people to "take any doctor the surgeon general tells them to."

On the President's recommendation for Federal aid to guild hospitals and health centers, the editorial said both the American Medical Association and the American Hospital Association have approved the principlhes of separate legislation to make this effective.

Engineers Give Highest Honors For War Effort

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers has conferred two of its highest honor on Rear Admiral Harold Gardiner Bowen, chief of research and invention for the United States Naval Research Laboratory, and Dr. William Frederick Durand, formerly of the National Research Council.

Admiral Bowen, 2819 Woodley rd. nw., received honorary membership in the society, and was cited for "his valiant and successful fight to introduce steams of high pressures and high temperatures into the United States Navy."

Dr. Durand, who left Washington an dhis position as chairman of engineering and industrial research for the council last July, was presented the society's medal for his "work in forwarding the design and application of principles of jet propulsion." Dr. Durand now lives in California where is professor emeritus of mechanical engineering at Stanford University.

Transport Plane Crashes; None Hurt

A C-45 Army transport plane crashed near Clayton, S. C., Tuesday night after leaving Bolling Field shortly after 3 that afternoon, War Department officials announced yesterday.

The plane, based at Lawson Field, near Columbus, Ga., had flown to Washington on a special mission. Only persons aboard at the time of the crash were the pilot and co-pilot, who parachuted to safety.

Test Of Success

Funds to carry the Government through the demobilization period can be raised in various way by borrowing. But there is one form of borrowing especially well suited to serve as an anti-inflationary device. That is borrowing from individuals, because it draws surplus purchasing power off the market for consumers' goods and services and dams it up until we have goods and services to match it. "In achieving this objective," Secretary Vinson said in a recent address, "the individual goal of 4 billion dollars is of even greater importance than the total goal of 11 billion."

That is why efforts are being concentrated upon stepping up individual bond sales, especially the E bond sales that represent the contributions of the wage earners and persons with limited means. The number of E bond purchases, as contrasted with the total dollar volume of such sales, has not been up to expectations here in the District. And for the country at large E bond sales are lagging sadly not halfway to the two-billion-dollar goal, while total individual sales amount to slightly more than three fourths of the four-billion quota set.

The people have the means with which to make a success of this individual drive—about that there can be no doubt. If they fail to do so, it will reflect sadly on the quality of their patriotism. For the money they are asked to contribute is needed to complete paying for the costs and the after-costs of war. To quit now would be a poor way to express thanks for the great victory that has been won. What's more, it would be extremely shortsighted to neglect an opportunity to strengthen the defenses against inflationary price advances that would reduce the purchasing power of wages and salaries and penalize all of us.

Ezra Pound

Chief Justice Laws of the District Court has directed that the unhappy Ezra Pound, now awaiting trial for treason, be committed to St. Elizabeths Hospital or to the psychiatric department at Gallinger Hospital for observation and treatment. According to his attorney, Pound is now in a state of acute neurasthenia and for many months has been showing signs of grievous mental deterioration. If this should prove to be so, it will afford the Department of Justice an escape from a difficult dilemma. Very few Americans, we suspect, are now persuaded that Ezra Pound was ever important or dangerous enough to make it really necessary to exact the price of his treason in his blood.

The case of Pound is, to be sure, in some ways analogous to that of William Joyce, until recently known to radio audiences all over the English-speaking world as Lord Haw-Haw. Joyce has been convicted of treason in the British courts and is under sentence of death. But where Joyce's speeches were clever, sarcastic and possibly actually damaging to the British cause, Pound's speeches—or at least the two or three examples of them to which we remember having listened—seemed incoherent and hopelessly muddled.

Transcripts of his speeches have been preserved and, if he is tried, will certainly be offered in evidence. Perhaps they make a little more sense in typescript than in sound, but we doubt it. Thus, although Pound may have given Mussolini and the Fascists some comfort, it may be doubted that he gave them, or was capable of giving them, any real aid. It would appear that Pound is now attempting to persuade his countrymen that his incoherence was intentional and deliberate. "How could anybody," he asked the reporter who saw him at the District Courthouse the other day, "how could anybody have any earthly idea of what I was talking about?"

Of the eight Americans indicted as traitors, only Ezra Pound was known to more than a handful of persons in the years immediately preceding the war. His celebrity, to be sure, was a literary one, and it came to him less because of his own poetry than because of his influence on other poets and novelists, which was for a time considerable. His esthetic doctrine might be described as one of originality for its own sake and at any cost. He applied this doctrine in his life as well as in his poetry, and it was inevitable that he should have been dismissed by many as merely another poseur; but there were also many who believed that if he had not given so much of his time to discovering and defending originality in the work of others he might have become the greatest poet of his day.

Unfortunately, Pound's passion for originality extended into economics and politics. It is the characteristic of revolutionary ages like our own that almost everybody, and particularly the poet, likes to play at revolution. It is, however, a very difficult and dangerous game as other and better poets than Pound, Chenier, for example, have discovered too late.

Amity Among Allies

Diplomacy, even at its best, can shape only the formal and official relations between peoples. Bonds of genuine friendship have to be forged by the peoples themselves through mutual understanding, tolerance for one another's shortcomings, and recognition that differences in manners and morals are not necessarily indications of iniquity. There is an opportunity to forge this kind of friendship between Russians and Americans who are living in close quarters these days, engaged in a common task, in Berlin. But the opportunity is being thrown away. It is being used, indeed, to harden old antipathies and crystallize resentments which our children and our children's children may inherit to their own disaster.

The newspaper PM has published a copyright dispatch by one of its correspondents in Germany, Victor H. Bernstein, which gives the partial text of a memorandum prepared for General Eisenhower by a newspaperman on relations between American and Soviet soldiers in Berlin. It is said that General Eisenhower inscribed the following initialed notation in his own handwriting on the original copy: "To General Clay—a prompt initiation or indoctrination would seem to be indicated. I'll help, if necessary! Parks ought to see this! D. E." To date, so far as can be discerned, no indoctrination has been initiated.

The newspaperman's memorandum, declaring Russo-American relations among the troops to be tending toward tenseness, cited among the causes the predilection among higher headquarters officers for telling tall tales about Russian red tape, an unwarranted credulity among the GIs for German atrocity stories about Russian behavior and "the tendency of the American soldiers, first observed in England three years ago, to judge every nation on the basis of its plumbing facilities." "Underlying these topical irritants for mistrust," asserts the writer of the memorandum, "is the great natural tendency of the average American soldier to condemn the Reds, the Bolshies, the Communists."

On the Russian side, there appears to be an equal credulity for German tales about the brutality of American and British troops and a growing resentment over the superior attitude said to be manifested by the GIs. Because there have been occasional clashes between hot-headed and drunken soldiers on either side, American commanders have sought to avoid trouble by forbidding any mingling of the two nationalities on the soldier level in official places of entertainment. Thus there is little Russo-American fraternization in Germany—less between these allies than between them and the Germans. "This problem," says the memorandum, "is going to be solved when the so-called lower level can get together around the mess hall . . . and talk things over. It's going to be solved when we start playing football with the Russians, who are not exactly slouches at sports. It's going to be solved when our troops start going to see their entertainers and theirs come to see our USO shows."

There seems to us to be much more sense in this than in a policy of rigid isolationism. Red army men have undoubtedly been guilty of some very bad behavior in Germany, and this is no more to be condoned than the occasional breaches of decency which have marred the generally excellent record of our own occupation troops. But there is no use in fostering the impression that the exceptions are the rule on either side. The need is for realism and understanding. We hope that General McNarney, who now succeeds General Eisenhower in the over-all responsibility for American forces in Europe, will do what he can to promote healthy and friendly intercourse, instead of recrimination, between Allied soldiers.

Censoring The Bishops

The absurdity of attempting to govern a conquered country by a rigid and inflexible directive prepared in advance of the conquest and without regard for possible exigencies is pretty well illustrated by the impasse which has arisen between the Information Control Office of the American Occupation Zone in Germany and Michael Cardinal Faulhaber, Archbishop of Munich. The impasse is the result of a pastoral letter prepared by the German Catholic hierarchy at their annual conference some months ago at Fulda.

It appears that Capt. John Roser, an officer of the Information Control Division, insisted that this letter be subjected to Army censorship before it was read in the churches. Specifically, Captain Roser objected to three passages in the letter. One of these was a statement by the bishops that not all persons who have been members of the Nazi Party could be held culpable for the crimes of the Nazi leaders. Many, said the bishops, had joined the party almost ignorant of its real purposes and activities. Some, such as government workers and school teachers, joined under economic duress and for the purpose of keeping their livelihoods. Others joined in the hope of exerting an influence against evil. Therefore, said the letter, justice required that members of the party should not be condemned en masse, but that each case should be investigated separately to determine the degree of guilt.

Another passage to which Captain Roser objected was the statement that, where religious education was not possible in the public schools, the Catholic Church must insist upon its liberty to conduct its own elementary schools. The third passage, which Captain Roser said must be deleted, was a rhetorical exhortation to those who had lately been prepared "to die for your people" to prepare themselves to "live for your people."

Cardinal Faulhaber was inflexible and declared that if the pastoral letter could not be read in its entirety it would not be read at all. Accordingly, it has not been read in any of the churches of the diocese of Munich, but evidently some negotiations are under way to have Captain Roser's order modified or voided by his superiors. Whether Captain Roser's action was merely an officious and tactless exercise of his authority, as some Catholics in the United States now assert, or whether he was dutifully attempting to apply his general instructions to a particular case, would be difficult to say. The directive order for the conduct of the occupation issued last April to General Eisenhower specified that measures for the control of public information in Germany must be taken. It stated, however, that the policies of the United States in this matter "will be sent to you separately and you will be guided by these in your negotiations with the control council." A memorandum setting forth these policies was indeed sent to General Eisenhower, but the contents of it have never been made public.

In any event, it seems astonishing that apparently neither the persons who prepared these policies nor those who are attempting to enforce them have taken account of two facts: First, that the Roman Catholic Church is not a national but an international institution and that its historic position concerning elementary education is the same in Germany as in all other countries; second, that Catholic bishops in and out of Germany would necessarily view the question of the guilt of individual Nazis in the light of abstract justice rather than in the light of political ideology or of diplomatic expediency. Besides, as we have said before, the success of the occupation and reconstruction depends upon the cooperation of a considerable section of the German people, but as these policies are now working out, we are making cooperation more and more difficult for Germans of any category.

District Jail Again

The recent escape of five prisoners from the District Jail in the broadest daylight and under the very noses of their guards is merely the latest in an apparently interminable series of scandals concerning that institution, going back many years and covering several administrations. The escape occurred at some time between 1 and 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon, but apparently it was not noticed until some time later. The superintendent of the jail was not notified of the escape until 2:40 p. m., and there was a further and somewhat mysterious delay in notifying the police.

In the course of an investigation into the escape, one of the jail guards under examination was suddenly arrested. He was accused of having solicited bribes from friends or relatives of certain prisoners, promising special favors in return. Meanwhile the Department of Justice decided to make known how a few years ago the administration of the jail had been so extremely lax that at least one prisoner was regularly permitted to leave the jail to attend "business conferences" in the various important Washington hotels. This prisoner, it seems, is now at the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, serving a term for some mail frauds involving war contracts.

Other significant occurrences at District Jail within the past half dozen years have included, besides the innumerable escapes, the disappearance of property taken from prisoners and supposedly held for safekeeping, food poisonings due to carelessness in preparation of meals, the cutting of window bars in the section of the jail occupied by men condemned to death, and the smuggling of saws to prisoners plotting escape.

At the bottom of the evil is not only chronic administrative inefficiency and corruption or negligence among employes but also the fact that the District Jail would be a disgrace to any American city. It is so hopelessly antiquated and physically inadequate that the best administration and the most conscientious staff could not possibly transform it into a well-regulated prison. Apparently the demoralization among the prisoners, due to overcrowding, to the lack of opportunities for suitable exercise, and the impossibility of segregating experienced criminals from first offenders, eventually spreads to the prison employes. Again and again conditions at the jail have been investigated, and again and again investigators solemnly report that the first step in any real reform must be the building of a new jail. But somehow the step is never taken.

WORDS FOR A WINTER EVENING

(To R. H. G.)

Now is the time for the quiet sowing
Of dreams in a firelit room,
Where copper-colored firelight dances
On the peaceful print of a man plowing;
On the pink-white cloud of a tree in bloom.
Now is the time when the rain glances
Off windows, and wind is a youthful rebel;
Sow your dreams now, sow them deep, oh friend—
This is the time for old scars to mend;
Time to patch up the long year's trouble
With the copper-bright threads of the fire glowing Bright on the walls. Be quick, be nimble,
For Winter is quick in his coming and going,
And Beauty is brief, and her priceless symbol
Is peace sown deep, with a friend at that sowing,
In the small, rich world of a firelit room!

Lives Of Teachers

By Malvina Lindsay

Sin of Matrimony

PERSISTENTLY the question, "How can Americans become equal to running America?" bobbed up in the recent Senate science hearings. One Senator, formerly an educator, maintained the key to salvation lay in the elementary schools. There, said he, was the bulk of tomorrow's voters.

Here was a clue to an old problem, one that the atom bomb, and also the political challenge which Western democracy faced, had now put under high pressure. The Senator was right about the voters. The last census showed that 56 per cent of American adults past 25 had only an eighth-grade education, and 13 per cent had not gone beyond the fourth grade. Seventy-five per cent had not completed high school.

Who were the teachers of these two-thirds future voters from the elementary schools? Women, almost entirely. What women? Oh, any women who could be obtained for the salaries paid, and who could meet school board requirements. The trouble was that schools, for all the handsome buildings and modern equipment many of them had, were weak in the human element. They weren't getting as high quality teachers as they needed.

THE REASONS? Teachers were shamefully underpaid. Their personal lives and social opportunities were restricted by communities. Chances for administrative advancement were largely limited to men. They were worked to death on community theatricals and charity drives. Pay of course was the big hurdle. But lurking in the background of the researchers' reports was the shadow of a tradition that too long has hovered over American life—namely "old maid school teacher."

True, this was lifted to an extent during the war. So acute was the teacher shortage that some of the most rockribbed school boards implored married teachers to return to the schoolroom. But—would this attitude last when teachers became more plentiful, jobs scarcer? Or, would the old ban on married teachers be revived as it was following the last war?

Even as late as 1942, a study by the National Education Association's Research Division indicates preference was shown to single women in employing teachers in 95 per cent of 1782 cities. In these, 61 per cent lost their jobs when they married. Married women were ineligible for appointment as teachers in 58 per cent of the city school systems.

This prejudice, dating back to the pioneer cult that married women had enough to keep them busy at home, and given modern reinforcement by the job shortage of the 1930's, has a strong grip on America, particularly in the Southeast and Southwest. Now it holds a serious threat for postwar elementary education. Far more important than the three R's children learn is the character, knowledge and personality of the teacher who molds them, particularly through the impressionable years of 6 to 14.

WHILE MANY OF the greatest teachers have been women who have foregone marriage to devote all their time and talents to other people's children, modern girls are not assenting so willingly to this sacrifice. They know that in other professions the era of having to choose between marriage or a career has passed.

Educational authorities say the attitude, "Only spinsters need apply," is keeping many promising young women from studying to be teachers. It is causing those who do enter teaching to regard it as a stopgap rather than a life's work, and hence to make the minimum of preparation. It is causing a rapid turnover in school staffs—especially now when America is in the marriage mood—and thus a waste of public money invested in teachers' preparation. It is keeping out of the schoolroom teachers whose lives have been enriched by marriage and parenthood. It will cut off from livelihood and professional contribution many former teachers and would-be teachers who are the wives of disabled servicemen, and who will need to work.

It is not only the celibacy rule for teachers that should be eliminated. The old folk myth that spinsterhood is connected with school teaching, and all the hoary jibes on the subjects, should be rooted out of American life. These, of course, prevail most generally in rural districts and small towns. But many of the elementary teachers come from such places. Many young women who could bring into the schoolroom the vitality and enthusiasm needed to stir and inspire tomorrow's Americans shy away from school teaching because it has gotten the name of an "old maid's" calling. To end this situation communities should speedily lift their moss-grown bans on married teachers, provide maternity leaves for them, and what is more, encourage single teachers in marriage by offering them a social life aimed in that direction.

Our China Policy

By Barnet Nover

Clarification Is Needed

THE CONFUSION that surrounds present-day American policy in China is the product of no one cause. It stems from a complex set of circumstances, some of them heavily laden with emotion.

First of all, there is the circumstance that the end of the war did not lead, as most people in this country hoped it would lead, to the final unification of China but only to a new outbreak of civil strife.

If, on the morrow of VJ-Day, the Chungking government's mandate to rule all of China from the Siberian border and Outer Mongolia to Indo-China and Burma, from the Pacific to Tibet, had been uncontested no questions could have been raised about the continued presence of our forces in China. Certainly, no questions are being raised about the continued presence of American troops in other former war areas.

The fact that Japan's capitulation was immediately followed by a new struggle for power between Chungking and the Chinese Communists has led to a confusion in the public mind regarding the presence of our troops in China. They are there to help to disarm and ultimately evacuate the Japanese forces on the mainland. But the charge is being made that their real purpose is to intervene in China's internal situation in order to benefit and aggrandize the Chungking regime at the expense of the Reds.

THE SECOND CAUSE of confusion is that China has again become, as it has been so often in the past, the scene of great power rivalries.

It was precisely to prevent that very thing from happening that American statesmanship long sought to bring Russia and China together, since it was realized that only through a truly workable arrangement between the two countries, one that would insure China's territorial and administrative integrity, would it be possible to prevent China from becoming a bone of contention between Russia and the United States.

Last August, China and Russia concluded an agreement which fully met American desires. In that agreement Russia recognized China's sovereignty over Manchuria and Inner Mongolia. She also recognized the Chungking regime as the sole government of China. This looked like a very hopeful beginning. What made it even more so was the opening of negotiations soon after between Chiang Kai-shek and the leaders of the Chinese Communists.

Since then, unfortunately, Russian-American relations have deteriorated. This development has been reflected in the revival of the struggle for power between Chungking and the Chinese Communists, with the latter being put in a position by local Russian commanders in Manchuria and Inner Mongolia to build up their armed strength by disarming Japanese garrisons.

A THIRD CAUSE of confusion has been differences among American officials as to how best to implement American policy in China. In the statement announcing his resignation as Ambassador to China, Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley charged unnamed career diplomats with having sabotaged his efforts in China and thus with having cut the ground from under policies laid down by the President and the Secretary of State.

These charges clearly need investigation. That differences of opinion did exist among those charged with execution of American policies and that these differences of opinion resulted in confusion cannot be doubted.

Compounding this confusion has been the absence of any clear-cut statement by any one in a position to speak with real authority as to just what we have been doing in China and why.

DURING THE WAR secrecy was both inevitable and wise. But this secrecy as to our immediate activities has tended to cloud our long-range aims in China even though these have repeatedly been stated by high American officials. In fact no American policy is less ambiguous than the stand we have taken with regard to China.

Our position there has always been in favor (1) of the territorial and administrative integrity of China and (2) a strong and united China. These aims clearly cannot be achieved if China is a prey to civil strife. The fact has long been realized in Washington that a weak China means a vacuum in the heart of Asia which is bound to be filled, as it has always been filled when such conditions obtained in the past, by the influx of rival interests from outside followed by a struggle between them.

In supporting the Chungking government, even while trying to help bring about a unity of all factions in China, we are not only pursuing our historic course in Asia but are following the only policy that can, in the long run, secure the achievement of our basic aims.

GI Brides

I am one of the GI brides about whom the papers have been printing so much. I am longing to join my husband and his people, as any wife who dearly loves her husband would, and I consider all this publicity absolutely ridiculous.

I consider I am very lucky to be able to look forward to coming to the States in January, but I certainly don't wish to take an inch of shipping space from any returning GI.

Please don't judge all 54,000 by the irresponsible few who have staged the recent demonstrations in London, and whose actions have made our American sisters so bitter toward us. We hope to become good American citizens some day, and we don't wish to create bitterness before we even arrive. We only wish to offer friendship to the people of America, and until such times as we can cement those bonds of friendship, we hope the men and women of America will reserve judgment and look on us, not as women who "have stolen good American boys when they are down" (as quoted by a correspondent), but as women who love their husbands dearly, and not just because they happen to be Americans. EILEEN BREEDLOVE.

Veterans' Benefits

On page 6 of Parade for Sunday, November 18, appears the statement that to be eligible for the educational benefits of the GI Bill of Rights a veteran must have served after September 16, 1940, and before VJ-Day. Is it true that the teen-agers who are being drafted now are ineligible for these benefits? I find nothing in this legislation to that effect. If this is true, then there are going to be some disillusioned boys when they find it out.

DONALD C. HORTON.

Washington, Nov. 18.

Editor's note: The Veterans Administration informs us that the statement was in fact incorrect. Young men now serving in the armed forces are eligible for benefits until Congress declares the war is ended.

Co-Author

In an item about the Book and Author luncheons in The Post, November 25, I find myself described as the author of Our Jungle Diplomacy. The correct word is "co-author." The book was written in collaboration with Mr. William Franklin Sands and is criticism of American foreign policies and diplomatic practices, based mainly on Mr. Sands' experiences in the era of the Roosevelt-Hay imperialism and of the Taft-Knox Dollar Diplomacy.

Parking Problem

What kind of town do we want Washington to be? The answer to the parking problem will go a long way toward deciding this question.

People can't (or won't) spend more than a certain amount of time getting to work. Chicago studies showed that the time from the Loop to the edge of built-up areas has been remarkably stable, at an hour and 10 minutes for several decades. Anything that speeds up transportation increases the livable area and provides more individual homes. Everything that slows it down packs families into apartments and flats along mass transportation lines.

Grant's plan is explicitly intended to discourage individual car use and force District workers to slower and less flexible Capital Transit facilities. Since transit lines can provide reasonable service only to densely populated areas, that means Grant wants to create a city where family life is bound by the walls of an apartment.

Added tax values of suburban areas will go a long way toward paying for the public parking space needed if Washington is to be a city of homes rather than one of tenements. SUBURBANITE.

Silver Spring, Md., Nov. 20.

There is a developing conviction among transportation economists and engineers that the most satisfactory solution for city transportation is the most direct, simple and least costly, i. e. by making possible rapid, frequent transit service on contrplled access surface streets.

Too often in the past and in much of the recent planning, there has been a tendency to rely on costly, expensive and flashy projects (as subways and urban freeways) to solve this problem. This was partially due to the erroneous idea that facilities could and should be made available for the automobiles in the central area.

It is now realized that this can not be accomplished, and in fact that only a small percentage of the automobile users can be satisfactorily accommodated at an undue expense to (or high subsidization by) the public.

Of course, if greater use should be made of transit (as will be necessary in the peak hours), the fare for peak-period transit service, for which the cost per rider is appreciably greater than in the nonpeak periods, will have to be raised. The required fare increase, however, would be only an insignificant fraction of the additional cost that would have to be borne by the automobile rider if, with or without subsidization, additional facilities (restricted by space) were made available for the necessarily limited portion of potential motorists.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

State Dept. Chaos

THIRTY-FOUR-YEAR-OLD Col. Frank McCarthy was called in by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes to reorganize the State Department. As one of General Marshall's aides he had won a brilliant reputation as an administrator and organizer.

McCarthy, with the rank of Assistant Secretary, stayed in the department from September 1 to October 11. Resigning, he gave illness as the reason. A contributing cause to that illness may well have been the mess that he found in the department.

In McCarthy's place Byrnes appointed his law partner from Spartanburg, S. C., Donald Russell, who was with Byrnes in the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, has some experience in Government, but only a limited knowledge of foreign affairs.

AT A RECENT press conference Byrnes was asked about the reorganization of the department. He said it was proceeding slowly and added that he thought it ought to proceed slowly. He pointed out that there had been several shake-ups at the top which had added to the confusion.

While that may be partly true, the fact remains that a thorough-going overhauling is essential if the State Department is to do the job that so vitally needs doing. No mere reshuffling of functions will suffice. A few changes at the top will not be enough.

Byrnes himself must do what no Secretary in recent times has done. He must carry the cause of the State Department to Congress, because only with the aid of Congress can the necessary reconstruction be carried out.

The plain fact is that for years the department has been pitifully understaffed and overworked. No one has ever gone to bat with Congress to get a really adequate appropriation. The deficiency is not merely in experts and officers in the department and the foreign service. There are not enough stenographers, not enough telephones, not enough paper clips, not enough of anything unless it be red tape inherited out of the past.

For foreign service officers in the field, from young secretaries up to Ambassadors, the pay is shamefully low. This is one reason why we have so often had rich amateurs instead of trained professionals, in our top diplomatic posts.

The State Department is just now having to take over new functions. It is important that the American point of view be presented to the press of the world. Therefore some of the staff of the disbanded Office of War Information have been taken over by the department.

They should be fitted into a revitalized division of information. The objective should be not to keep back information, but to tell the American people everything it is possible to tell within the bounds of national security.

PRESSURE IS GROWING for a scientific division within the department, with scientific secretaries attached to our principal diplomatic missions. Some such method of scientific exchange would seem to be imperative.

Yet the creaking framework of the department resists these intrusions. It is narrowed by hidebound tradition and narrowed by a pinch-penny policy.

What happened in the case of Cordell Hull is, perhaps, typical. He became absorbed in the day-to-day conduct of foreign affairs in a perilous time. On top of that he was distracted by a feud within the department that owed not a little of its bitterness to the petty jealousies of some professional diplomats.

With his great prestige and popularity in Congress, Hull might have got an adequate appropriation for a modern department. But he never had the time or the extra energy necessary.

Byrnes now has that opportunity. He, too, has strong personal friendships on Capitol Hill out of his years in the House and the Senate.

But the opportunity will not wait forever. The department of today could deal with the foreign problems of, say, 1910. For the job of 1945 and '46, it is hopelessly handicapped.

World Citizenship

I have just finished reading "Modern Man Is Obsolete," by Norman Cousins, and I find myself wondering whether Mr. Cousins is the only modern man in America. Certainly I have heard no one else speak with such courage of world citizenship and of a real federation of nations. I believe there must be others intelligent enough to realize that we are faced with the choice between extinction by future atomic wars on the one hand and the sacrificing of our national sovereignty on the other hand. Then why don't these men speak? Are they afraid, or are they selfish enough to prefer the extinction of mankind to the sharing of their own economic good fortune? For myself, if I may be permitted a vote, I eagerly make the latter choice in the hope that future men will be able to work out a form of world government that will provide the maximum degree of pleasant living.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

DIARY NOTES: Dillard Lassiter, former staff director of the House Civil Service Investigating Committee, is in the running for appointment as Farm Security Administrator . . . Harold L. Price of Luray, Va., has been appointed solicitor of the Civilian Production Administration. Laurence M. Lombard, general counsel, has appointed Matthew Hale, Laurens H. Rhinelander and Harry Steiner as his assistants . . . Representative Mike Monroney of Oklahoma, will stay in Congress. He isn't interested in being the assistant to the Attorney General. James P. McGranery, the assistant, is slated to be named a Federal judge in Pennsylvania . . . Pierce MacCoy has been appointed director of personnel at the State Department. He succeeds John Ward who has been appointed special assistant to the director of the International Information Office . . . The Downey pay bill was again delayed yesterday in the Senate.

RENTS: The girls in Government dormitories are seeking a reduction in rents. They have appealed unsuccessfully to the manager, the Public Buildings Administration, and now they have taken their fight to members of Congress. A petition signed by several hundred girls who live in Barton Hall in West Potomac Park was sent to Capitol Hill by Helen A. Megella, secretary of the house council. It explains that they must pay $24.50 a month for a small room and that they were not accepted if they were paid more than $2100 a year. "With taxes, retirement and bonds being taken from the Government employes' salary in addition to their rent there is very little left for meals and other incidentals. With the decrease in pay, many of these civilian employes will be forced to leave Washington if the present rent is continued," the petition stated.

RETIREMENT: The Morse bill has been approved unanimously by the Senate. It would give Federal workers who were retired before January 24, 1942, the right to compute their annuities under the liberalized law that was approved at that time. This is the second time it has passed the Senate. The bill now goes to the House where it has been stymied in the House Civil Service Committee. Now, however, the House will have a chance to consider the bill by itself. Formerly, it was tied up with a proposal to raise the annuities of retired civil servants by 15 per cent. Chairman Ramspeck and other committee members opposed the 15 per cent raise to help annuitants offset higher living costs and the entire bill was shelved.

Factory Payrolls In Maryland Off 2.5% in Month

Baltimore, Nov. 28 (AP).—The department of labor and industry in Baltimore today reported a .4 per cent decrease in facotry employment in Maryland and a combined weekly payroll drop of 2.5 per cent from September to October, 1945.

The department said its report was based on returns by 648 manufacturing establishments in 43 industries. These establishments in October employed 137,572 persons with combined weekly earnings in that month of $5,644,498, the report said.

Although some firms increased employment and payrolls during this period, the gains were offset by heavy decreases in the aircraft and shipbuilding industries, the report added.

The average change in Maryland factory employment from September to October during the past 22 years has been a decrease of .1 per cent in employment and a rise of .4 per cent in payrolls, the report showed.

Winchester Pastor Retires After 25 Years

Winchester, Va., Nov. 28 (Spl.).—The Rev. R. B. Nelson, for 25 years rector of Christ Episcopal Church in this city, has resigned.

W. Nelson Page, senior warden of the vestry, said the resignation was accepted with "great regret." The Rev. Mr. Nelson stated that his physician had recommended that he reduce his responsibilities and that he also feels younger chaplains who have seen war service should be given greater opportunities.

Budget Boost Asked In Frederick County

Frederick, Md., Nov. 28 (Spl.).—The county board of education has submitted a budget request of $856,942 for 1946 to the county commissioners. The request is approximately $128,000 more than for the current year. The increase is due mainly to a raise in the salaries of teachers and janitors and rising transportation costs, Eugene W. Pruitt, county superintendent of education, explained.

Md. Father of Eight Killed by Army Truck

Frederick, Md., Nov. 28 (Spl.).—Walter Stanley Andrews, 42, father of eight children, was fatally injured here today when struck by an Army truck as he crossed a downtown street. Police exonerated Pvt. Thomas H. Quinn, Camp Detrick, driver of the truck, who said Andrews walked into the path of his vehicle.

Welfare Head Scores Jailing Of Va. Minors

Richmond, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—May O. Hankins, commissioner of the State Department of Public Welfare, said in her annual report on juvenile detention services released today, that Virginia is still failing to carry out the direct mandate of the law which prohibits the use of jails for children except in the most extreme circumstances.

Statistics show that the total number of children under 18 jailed during the period ending June 30, was 4219 as compared with 4351 the previous year. Miss Hankins said, "the picture as a whole is not a pretty one."

Miss Hankins urged that some place other than jail be provided for children, stating that a lack of concern and concerted effort and the division of responsibility are the most consistent factors found so far to account for excessive use of jails for children.

Asks Boards to Act

She asked local welfare boards to take the initiative in bringing about a coordinated development of policy to keep children out of jail in communities where law enforcement officials make no attempt to do so.

In the past year, the town of Buena Vista and seven counties—Craig, Essex, Gloucester, King and Queen, Richmond and Surry—put no children in jail, while last year 13 counties jailed no children. Each of the seven counties with the exception of Craig has a population of less than 10,000, and all are according to the report.

A marked increase in the number of 17-year-olds incarcerated was noted and emphasis on keeping out of jail, children 16 and under, was also considered.

The largest number of children were incarcerated in jail in Henrico County during the year, although only 51 of 186 juvenile delinquents were actually in jail for Henrico County. A total of 105 were Federal cases, including a great number of Navy AWOLS, and 30 children were held for other localities.

Treated As Adults

Most of the 16 and 17 year olds jailed are treated as adults, are fined and, in lieu of payment, serve time. The younger children are usually placed on probation.

In two places in Virginia Miss Hankins reported, judges occasionally order a whipping, which they contend is permitted under law.

The greatest number of offenses committed were against property and the next largest group comes under the heading of decency and good order. Accused of drunkenness were 234 children 17 years old, 108 children 16 years old, 26 children 15, and 2 children 10. There were 216 children 17 and 106 children 16 accused of offenses against persons, including simple and felonious assault, rape and robbery.

Art Monument As War Memorial Urged by League

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 28 (Spl.).—The erection of a pure art monument as the Charlottesville-Albemarle Memorial for World War II was favored by the majority of members of the Albemarle Art League in a vote which followed a lively discussion at yesterday's meeting in Fayerweather Hall, at the University of Virginia.

In the discussion of a suitable war memorial, the community center project, recently adopted by the Charlottesville-Albemarle War Memorial Association, was criticized on the grounds that it would be difficult to make such a building equally available to both races, and that subsequent collections would be needed to provide for its maintenance.

Members also protested the use of the war memorial "as a means of getting a civic center," and pointed out that civic authorities are already considering the erection of a city hall which they said would probably provide the necessary facilities.

Frederick POW Camp Will Remain Open

Frederick, Md., Nov. 28 (Spl.).—Prisoner of war labor will be available from the camp near Frederick at least until January 1 and perhaps longer, it was learned here today. Temporary camps in Carroll and Montgomery Counties have been closed.

Officials said no definite date has been set and no orders as yet issued for closing the camp here, which is equipped to take care of prisoners through the winter months. About 200 German captives are being employed daily on county farms.

V. G. Weaver, 65, Dies; Portsmouth Banker

Richmond, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—V. Garland Weaver, 65, founder of the First National Bank of Portsmouth, of which he was president for 20 years, died here today after a long illness.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at the grave in Forest Lawn Cemetery, Norfolk.

He had long been an active member of the American Bankers Association and was a former president of Group 1, Virginia Bankers Association.

Ex-Jockey Released On Bond in Shooting

Frederick, Md., Nov. 28 (Spl.).—Jack Favorite, Emmitsburg, a former jockey, was released under $500 bond today to face a charge of carrying concealed weapons in connection with the shooting of George Ott, 17, Emmitsburg, now recovering at a Gettysburg, Pa., hospital. Police said Bernard Ott, father of the wounded youth, quoted his son as saying he did not know the gun they were handling in a garage, was loaded.

W. F. Farish's Rites Today in Charlottesville

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 28 (Spl.).—William Franklin Farish, 75, retired farmer, died yesterday at his home near Proffit, this county, following an extended illness. The funeral will be held here Thursday afternoon, and interment will follow in Riverview Cemetery.

He was a native of Albemarle County, son of the late Samuel and Martha Minter Farish, and had been a member of the local Tent of Macabees for more than 35 years. He married Miss Dora Lee Smith, of the county, who survives, with seven children: Mrs. R. A. Edwards and S. L. Herring of Proffit; Mrs. Patsy Dabney of Edgewood, Md.; Mrs. J. W. Sylvia of Richmond; Mrs. C. D. Spencer and F. D. Farish of Baltimore, and J. M. Farish of this city. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. Annie Roberts of this city, and two brothers, Samuel Farish of Red Hill and Lee Farish of Shores.

C. N. Holloway

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 28.—Funeral rites for Conway N. Holloway, who was killed Monday night when he was struck by an automobile on Route 250, near Staunton, were held here this afternoon. For many years he was a shoe salesman for a Charlottesville firm, but more recently he had been an employe of the DeJarnette Sanatorium, at Staunton. He is survived by one son, Robert Holloway of Newport News, and five sisters.

George W. Largent

Winchester, Va., Nov. 28. — George W. Largent, 78, retired farmer and blacksmith, who died at the hospital here yesterday, will be buried tomorrow in the Whitacre Methodist Church Cemetery. He leaves a daughter, brother and sister.

John F. Gray

Winchester, Va., Nov. 28.—Funeral services were held today for John Foster Gray, manager of the Green Chemical Co., of this city, who died Monday following a heart attack. He was a son of the late Rev. and Mrs. Emory Gray and although born in Ohio came here when quite young. He leaves his wife, the former Miss Myrtle Goshert.

John E. Helsley

Berkeley Spring, W. Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—John E. Helsley, 76, retired Berkeley Springs merchant and a former member of the West Virginia State Senate, died yesterday in a Winchester, Va. hospital of complications. He was born August 22, 1869, in Frederick County, Va., a son of George K. Helsley and Katherine D. Helsley, and taught school for 21 years before opening a store in Berkeley Springs. Funeral services will be held Friday at Mount Wesley, Va.

William H. Maguire

Elkton, Md., Nov. 28 (AP).—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for William H. Maguire, 91, native of Madison and Dorchester County delegate to the Maryland Legislature in 1908. Maguire, who was in the canvas sail making business in Baltimore until his retirement in 1905, died Sunday at his daughter's home. He is survived by his widow, five daughters and three sons.

99.54% Tax Record

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 28 (Spl.).—Treasurer J. Cleveland Grigsby, of King George County, collected 99.54 per cent of the 1945 tax levy, according to an audit. During the past five years collections averaged 98.50 per cent for one of the outstanding records in Virginia.

Short-Lived Freedom

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 28.—Released by the State penitentiary hardly more than a month ago, George F. Smith, 19-year-old Negro, today was headed back for that institution under a 20-year sentence given him yesterday by Judge A. D. Dabney, in Corporation Court, on four charges of breaking and entering.

Arundel Board Disapproves Airport Plan

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 28 (AP).—The Anne Arundel County Board of Commissioners was on record today disapproving construction of an airport by the Annapolis Airport Corp., 2 miles south of the city on Bay Ridge road.

The commissioners voted 5 to 2 yesterday to disapprove the project after a hearing.

Dr. Maurice F. Klawans, owner of a 38-acre tract adjacent to the proposed airport site, asked that commissioners take a stand on the project which he opposes.

Meanwhile the airport corporation awaited action of the State Aviation Commission on its application for a license to construct the airport.

Arthur P. Snader, president of the corporation, previously applied for a permit from the county commissioners to build a hangar and an administration building on the site.

At the hearing before the commissioners, Snader presented a letter from Clarence E. Tyler, who owns land near the proposed airport, favoring its construction, as well as a petition signed by approximately 77 persons, including residents of Bay Ridge road, also favoring it.

The commissioners scheduled a hearing for Tuesday on the matter of issuing construction permits to the airport corporation.

Va. Lifer Killed By Cellmate

Richmond, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—Maj. Frank Smyth, superintendent of the State penitentiary, announced today that James Holloman, 21-year-old lifer on a robbery sentence, died Sunday afternoon of stab wounds inflicted Saturday afternoon by his cellmate.

Holloman, who formerly lived at Atlantic City, N. J., was serving a life sentence for robbery in Washington County, and began his time August 17. His home address was Philadelphia.

Major Smyth said Holloman was stabbed at 5:30 p. m. Saturday in an argument with Albert Eberhardt, a 28-year-old war veteran who has served three years of a ten-year sentence for robbery. The two had just been locked in their cell for the night when the quarrel began. The superintendent said Eberhardt stabbed Holloman with scissors, and that he did not know how the prisoner obtained them.

Sanger Heads Unit Planning Health Council

Richmond, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—Dr. W. T. Sanger, president of the Medical College of Virginia, will head a committee named to plan details of the organization of a State-wide health and medical care council.

The committee was appointed at a meeting here yesterday of representatives of 37 organizations interested in public health and medical care. The council will be merged with the rural health and medical care committee.

Serving with Dr. Sanger will be Dr. George Zehmer, University of Virginia extension director; Miss Ellen Smith, Richmond, president of the Virginia Tuberculosis Association; Dr. W. E. Garnett, rural sociologist of the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station, Blacksburg; Dr. Julian L. Rawls, Norfolk, president of the State Medical Society; Mrs. O. F. Northington, president, State Federation of Women's Clubs; Dr. I. C. Riggin, State health commissioner, and Dr. Hamilton Francis, Norfolk, representing the Old Dominion Medical Society, a Negro organization.

Charles R. Fenwick, chairman of the Virginia Advisory Legislative Council's subcommittee on rural health and medical care, told the delegation that legislative action for the extension of public health service will not be taken until health and civic organizations of the State make the public aware of the need.

Forest Fletcher Buried; Founder Of Grid League

Lexington, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—Funeral services for Forest Fletcher, former Notre Dame and Olympic track star and for 28 years Washington and Lee University physical education professor, who died here yesterday, were conducted today at 4 p. m.

The 57-year-old founding father of the old Southern Conference has been in ill health and unable to teach at W. and L. for several years prior to his resignation in 1942. He became critically ill three days ago.

Fletcher served as secretary of the Southern Conference and from 1934 to 1936 was its president.

Earning his degree in electrical engineering at Notre Dame, he came to W. and L. in 1914 and established the university's department of physical education. His 1931 track team won the Southern Conference indoor meet.

Surviving Fletcher are his widow, the former Laura Powell Tucker, daughter of the late Senator Harry St. George Tucker; two daughters, Mrs. Michael T. Crocker of Charlottesville and Miss Henrietta Tucker of Lexington, and a son, Forest Fletcher, jr., Army Air Force, Scott Field.

Gift Incubator Arrives in Time To Save Infant

Baltimore, Nov. 28 (AP).—A 2-pound baby girl born prematurely in Franklin Square Hospital was alive today because an incubator arrived just in time to save her life.

Miss Jean Hand, superintendent of the hospital, said that the incubator, a gift of the Towson Post of the American Legion, arrived Sunday and was placed in immediate use for the new-born baby. It was an advanced type, unlike the hospital's two other incubators, Miss Hand said.

The gift was presented by Robert H. Wheeler, commander of the Towson Post, and Mrs. Lee W. Tifton, president of the women's auxiliary.

Quick Steps Out of Army

15-MINUTE PROCESS—They enter the chapel at Army's Newton D. Baker Hospital at Martinsburg, W. Va.; (center) Col. Cook gives personal farewell; (lower) they enter the bus—all within 15 minutes

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—There is a quick discharge for wounded war veterans from the Army's Newton D. Baker General Hospital here, covering never more than 15 minutes.

It is built on the standard discharge service but personalized as much as possible by Col. E. L. Cook, commanding officer, who thanks each man personally for his service to his country and wishes him good luck, all the while holding the man's hand and looking him straight in the eye.

Only veterans are discharged here who go out for disability. They come from the hospital list. Earlier a separation center for soldiers eligible on points had also been operated but this has been discontinued.

The men come to the post chapel, where the ceremony is held, with all their papers—including disability claims—prepared. They go directly from the chapel to a special bus which brings them to this city for train or bus connections to take them home.

Holdup Victim Shoots Suspect

Portsmouth, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—Jack Morse, 44, who recently was reported to have escaped from a Federal prison at Lexington, Ky., was placed in King's Daughters Hospital here today after he had been found with four bullet wounds in his body. His condition was later described at the hospital as "fair."

Morse had been sought since Monday night when Nathan Bomel of Norfolk swore out a warrant for his arrest, charging grand larceny of $1200.

Capt. F. E. Watson of the Norfolk police division, quoted Bomel as saying he shot Morse when he saw him about two hours after the robbery outside the Woodmen Club on Bank st.

Morse was arrested last night when police, acting on a tip furnished by Norfolk County police, found him in an apartment of South st.

Capt. W. K. Goolrick Awarded Silver Star

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 28 (Spl.).—Capt. William Goolrick, jr., of Fredericksburg, a veteran of the campaigns in North Africa, Sicily, Italy and France, has received the Silver Star medal at Ashford General Hospital, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where he is undergoing treatment for major wounds.

He was awarded the medal for gallantry in action near Koenigsmacker, France, November 11, 1944, when, alone, he crossed the Moselle River and penetrated enemy territory on an important reconnaissance mission.

Captain Goolrick won the Bronze Star medal in Sicily.

Church Thief Sentenced

Winchester, Va., Nov. 28.—Charles Lee Carter, Negro, convicted of stealing a radio and a silver Communion set from two churches in the city, has been given a year each on two counts of petty larceny by Judge Burr P. Harrison, who heard the case yesterday in Corporation Court.

Md. Tire Quota Slightly Higher

Baltimore, Nov. 28 (AP).—The Office of Price Administration announced today the Maryland quota for passenger automobile tires for the month of December would be 34,206, as compared with 33,864 during November.

There will be 3630 tires availble for small trucks and 2858 for large trucks, the agency said.

The OPA added that a backlog of 2000 applications for passenger car tires was on file.

The State quota for small truck tires during November was 3630 and for large trucks 2750. The decrease in small truck tires is in line with a Nation-wide quota reduction of 50,000 for the coming month, the OPA stated.

Va. Horticulturists To Meet in Roanoke

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—A discussion of the problem, "How to Best Control Codling Moth," will be opened by R. H. Hurt, pathologist of the Piedmont Research Laboratory, Charlottesville, at the fiftieth annual meeting of the Virginia State Horticultural Society, to be held next week, December 4-6, in Roanoke.

At the opening session next Tuesday night the president, Lester D. Arnold of Winchester, will make his annual report, after which C. R. Willey of Richmond, associate State entomologist, will discuss the cedar rust problem.

Credit Official Faces False Report Charge

Richmond, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—E. M. Barrett, 36, secretary-treasurer of the Employes Credit Union of the Virginia Transit Co., was arrested yesterday on a charge of making a false report to police. He was released on $100 bond pending his appearance in police court Friday morning.

Barrett reported to police that he had been held up at the point of a gun and robbed of $3000 of the union's funds by an unidentified man last Friday.

B.&O. Conductor Found Fatally Hurt on Tracks

Frederick, Md., Nov. 28 (Spl.).—Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon for Newton C. Himes, 43, Baltimore & Ohio Railroad conductor, who died in Cumberland of injuries sustained when struck by a moving train. Himes, resident of Weverton, was last seen alive about 11 p. m. November 22. He was found critically injured a short time later alongside the caboose track. Surviving are his wife and three children.

Chicory is the root of Cichorium Intybus, a plant related to the dandelion, and closely resembling the parsnip and sugar beet.

Walsh Heads New Revenue Commission

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 28 (AP).—Former Attorney General William C. Walsh of Cumberland took over today as head of a new commission created by Governor O'Conor to consider "proper division of revenues by the State and local governments."

The Governor, who explained he had entertained recommendations for the commission from Republican Mayor T. R. McKeldin of Baltimore, said:

"It is my expectation that through this commission a thorough-going work can be accomplished for the lasting good of the State and our subdivisions."

Research assistance as well as secretarial and clerical help will be provided the commission, O'Conor announced.

Others named to the body include: Judge Joseph Sherbow of the Baltimore City supreme bench; State Senator John B. Funk, of Frederick county; Reuben Oppenheimer, Baltimore attorney; Howard Bruce, banker and industrialist of Elkridge, Howard County; Fred W. C. Webb, Salisbury attorney; J. Allan Coad, Leonardtown banker; Robert Vance, Baltimore; J. Kemp Bartlett, Baltimore; Howard W. Jackson, former Baltimore mayor; Thomas W. Pangborn, Hagerstown; W. Carroll Mead, Baltimore; John McC. Mowbray, Baltimore; Richard W. Baltimore, and John Butler, Baltimore.

Professors V. O. Key of Johns Hopkins and William Paul Walkfern of the University of Maryland were named consultants, while William Carswell Baxter of Baltimore was made attorney to the commission.

Norfolk Port Faces Strike Of Tug Chiefs

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—Capt. J. D. Wood, president of the Wood Towing Corp., said today that he has learned indirectly that tugboat captains will stop docking ships at the port of Norfolk at 7 a. m. Thursday.

"I understand indirectly," Captain Wood said, "that these men will repudiate their agreement with me after 7 o'clock tomorrow morning, although I have heard nothing directly from them."

The controversy involved a fee of $5 asked by the tugboat skippers for taking ships to and out of their berths. It came to a head with the receipt here yesterday of a War Labor Relation Board ruling that it has no power to compel steamship companies to pay the fee since the captains are not employed by the steamship companies. The WLB said the captains must settle their differences with their employer, the Wood Towing Corp.

Captain Wood said that he will as far as possible render assistance to ships. He said that many of the ships will dock and undock themselves.

Capt. B. T. Hurst, secretary of the Masters, Mates and Pilots Associations, which represents the tugboat captains, said today he had no comment to make at this time.

R. Arthur Jett, attorney for the organization, in the controversy, also would make no statement today in the matter.

The tugboat skippers claim that the $5 fee they ask is paid at other ports.

According to one source, the average earnings of the captains are $500 a month. They receive a base pay of $375 in addition to fees, such as a fee of $10 for taking a ship under bridges in the eastern or southern branches of the Elizabeth River.

Fairfax, Arlington Heavy Borrowers Of Literary Fund

Richmond, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—Literary fund loans to Virginia counties, cities and towns totaling $6,205,789 were outstanding at the close of the fiscal year June 30, the annual report of W. Tayloe Murphy, State treasurer, showed today.

Of this amount, 78 counties had loans of $5,822,731.46 and 10 cities and towns accounted for the balance of $383,058.37. Fairfax County held the largest loan, $559,720, followed by Roanoke County with $476,030, and Arlington County with $396,400.

The fund increased from $11,784,708 on July 1, 1944, to $12,725,935 on June 30, 1945.

The literary fund provides money which the localities may borrow through the State Board of Education for construction of school buildings and additions at an interest rate of 2 per cent. Any principal amount in the fund in excess of 10 million dollars may be used by the General Assembly for other school purposes.

Group to Discuss Stafford Fair Revival

Frederick, Va., Nov. 28 (Spl.).—The reorganization of the Stafford County Agricultural Fair Association will take place at a meeting at Falmouth High School Friday at 8 p. m.

The association has been inactive since early in the war and plans will be made Friday to resume staging annual produce and livestock exhibitions.

Yo-Yo Revival Seen

Richmond, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—Minter Wyatt Thompson, 26, one-time "yo-yo king" of the Old Dominion, predicts the fad is coming back among Virginia school children. He says he has seen 100 per cent more yo-yos within the last week in Richmond than he has for some time.

IF YOU DON'T LIKE
Poland Water

CHLORINE is frequently used in drinking water to guard against possible impurities and to safeguard public health. Also chlorine often imparts to water an irritating taste and, at times, a noticeable odor. For these reasons many people drink less water than they should to meet the body's requirements.

Know how delightfully refreshing naturally pure drinking water can really be. Join the thousands who are enjoying natural, crystal-clear, Poland Water and are drinking it exclusively—with every meal and several times a day. For more than a hundred years Poland Water, bottled and sealed at the spring, has been the favorite quality table water in discriminating homes, clubs, and at the finest hotels.

IT'S BENEFICIAL

Poland Water is wholesome for daily use. Many recommend it highly—and drink it regularly in their own homes. Children like it too, and mothers know the beneficial value of this pure spring water for the whole family.

You will enjoy this pure, refreshing, unchlorinated table water immensely. And you will do yourself good by drinking all the water your body needs.

Tell your favorite drug or food store to deliver a case of Poland Water today.

Flying Tigers fly strawberries now

1. Twelve Flying Tigers, India-China "hump" pilots and A.V.G. ground crew men came home from the war with an idea. After what they'd learned in China, they thought they could carve out a place for themselves in the air freight business—not as a regularly scheduled line but as contract haulers.

2. They knew they'd need a lot more capital. But that didn't discourage them. They pooled the savings they had, drew up their plans and started beating the bush for backers. Eventually they lined up several Los Angeles businessmen to furnish the additional capital on a 50-50 basis—the veterans to operate the company.

3. With this capital they bought 8 new, twin-engine, Navy-designed "Conestoga" cargo planes from the Surplus Property Board. Then they set up offices at the Long Beach (Cal.) Municipal Airport, named their company National Skyway Freight Corp. and started business August 1, 1945.

4. Today the "Flying Tiger Line" employs 40 men, 38 of them veterans. Its planes, each with a cargo capacity of 10,000 pounds, haul anything, from strawberries to penicillin, on a contract basis. Furthermore, they'll pick up freight any time, anywhere in the U. S. and deliver it anywhere in the world.

5. The company uses Union Oil Aviation Products. But that doesn't seem nearly as important to us as the fact that the boys were able to do what they did. It could hardly have happened under anything but the American "system."

6. Without the profit incentive the businessmen would not have put up the capital. Without the hope of gaining financial independence, the boys certainly wouldn't have sweated out the endless problems of starting a new business. Altogether, we think it's one of the greatest things that's happened since the war.

AMERICA'S FIFTH FREEDOM IS FREE ENTERPRISE

Sad Tenants Prepare to Vacate Office Building of Low Rents

By John F. Gerrity
Post Staff Writer

Saturday morning—moving day at the Maryland building—will see the end of a fantasy in Washington's bewildering office space picture, when evicted old fashioned roll-top desks move into the streets.

The fantasy lies in the fact that, in the heart of the city's business district, where rents are notoriously high, tenants of the old building at 1410 H st. nw., have been paying $15 a month for an office—with the more "eleborate" 3 and 4-room suites renting for "as much as $45 a month."

Tenants have been notified to vacate the four-story building which will be razed sometime between December 1 and December 15 to make room for a new building to be built by the Trans-Lux Radio City Corp.

A Few "Lucky" Ones

The luckier tenants—about 10 of the 100 who occupy the building—have managed to find office space elsewhere, or have doubled up with friends who already have offices in downtown Washington.

However, most of the unluckier officerholders seemed to accept placidly their sorry plight. Even Ben Marsh, executive secretary of the People's Lobby, Inc., who asked for 15 or 18 feet in the White House when he received his eviction notice, roared good-naturedly:

"It's just another case of rotten politics."

"I'm not going to budge until the end of the month—if then. No matter where I go, I'll have to pay 75 per cent more rent. Still, I'm willing to pay the White House as much as $50 a month—and I'm sure our presence would increase public confidence in the Administration," Marsh declared.

Where Will You Go?"

"Where will you go"—was the question put to many of these business men who sitting in their musty offices looked like tintypes from Dickens:

T Russell Hungerford, whose roll-top desk would make the late William Allen White's look tidy, had a simple answer:

"As soon as I can clean out this mess, I'm going home."

"The Lord only knows what I'll do," said J. F. Bauman, general insurance agent. "From where I sit now it looks like I'll be another telephone booth Indian—and do business that way. There's no other."

G. H. Laleger, real estate agent, looked up from a game of cribbage and solemnly sighed:

"It looks like the old hat will be the office for a while—unless I can move into the house—and that'll be nice."

The Street for Him

Albert Mueller, a watchmaker, moaned alternately: "It's a sin—It's a shame—It's a sin—Why, I'll have to put my counters and my tables and my tools right on the street—there's nothing else to do."

Architects George T. Santmyers and James T. Thomen found an immediate but expensive solution. "We've bought an old house at 2209 L st. nw.—after 20 years here, we're tired of paying for other peoples' buildings."

Another real estate agent, J. J. Lampton, one of 20 who have offices in the building, dolefully admitted:

"It looks like the old problem of where to go has finally boomeranged on us."

And then he summed up nearly everyone's reaction to the urrent, pressing problem:

"Where the h-ll can we go."

Prince William Milk Producers Meet Today

Manassas, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—The annual meeting of the Prince William County membership of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association will be held at 1 p. m. tomorrow at the Prince William Hotel.

Dr. E. H. Marsteller, local director of the association, will preside at the business meeting, and B. B. Derrick, manager of the Maryland and Virginia association, will be a guest speaker. Representatives of the association will discuss important developments in the milk market.

Paul Kruse Resigns

Paul Kruse, former assistant in charge of reference collections of the Library of Congress, has resigned to become bibliographer in the editorial department of the Encyclopedia Britannica, it was announced yesterday.

Falls Church Group Fears Annexation

Falls Church's growing block of public spirited citizens, eager to maintain the town's position in the metropolitan area, have been warned that the town faces obsorption by Arlington unless it gets more money.

The warning was issued at a meeting of the newly organized West End Citizens Association, at which Town Councilman Sargent White declared that the town either must grow and annex surrounding territories, or "be swallowed up by AArlington."

Councilman White stated that Arlington County is "desirous" of annexing Falls Church, and declared that in the recent Falls Church annexation suit, Arlington County appropriated $3000 to fight the annexation of land by Falls Church.

The association elected Ralph B. Ley, as president; L. P. Laing as vice president; Mrs. Allen Otis as recording secretary treasurer and H. G. McGinnis as corresponding secretary. The group adopted a constitution and appointed a three-man committee to draft organization by-laws. Members are John J. Kirby, Thomas Ballard and John H. King.

Women Voters Pick Mrs. Dunn For President

Mrs. Dorothy J. Dunn, former chairman of the Arlington County Welfare Board, yesterday was elected president of the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County.

Mrs. Dunn

Mrs. Dunn, who has been active in women's organizations in Virginia and in Washington, is a graduate of George Washington Law School and was instrumental in the establishment of the Women's Bureau of the Metroplitan Police Department.

Other officers named at yesterday's election were Mrs. Ruth Marcey, vice president; Mrs. Virginia Ekstrand, recording secretary; Mrs. Marion Hagan, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Margaret Tapp, treasurer; Mrs. Ethel Cooke, registrar; Mrs. Florence Cannon, parliamentarian. Division chairmen elected were Mrs. Beulah Goss, Mrs. Louise Payne, Mrs. Nellie Warner, Mrs. Ada Crockett and Mrs. Edith Corder.

Psychology Lesons Learned In War Termed Useful in Peace

The valuable lessons of war must be transformed into constructive social factors in peacetime, Comdr. John G. Jenkins, head of the Navy's aviation psychology, told members of the American Psychological Association yesterday.

Commander Jenkins, former head of the psychology department of Maryland University, spoke before psychologists from the Army and Navy and from universities all over the Nation, who met at Maryland University for a two-day conference.

"The war has given psychologists their greatest chance to aid in benefitting mankind. The future potential of psychology now lies with you," he said.

The finest recognition of the worth of psychologists is the certain knowledge that military establishments are setting up permanent and lasting sections and divisions of the association's brand of military psychology, he pointed out.

Pursuit Plane Splashes to Pimlico Victory

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

BROKEN ARM DEPT.—Mr. Greasy Neale, the head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, has displayed an utter lack of sympathy for Wilbur Moore of the Redskins, who left the game in the second quarter last Sunday at Shibe Park, toting a broken arm to the bench. "I have no sympathy for Wilbur Moore," said Mr. Neale.

POVICH

And by way of explanation, Neale added: "Moore broke his arm trying to take a swing at my boy Ernie Steele."

The movies of the pro games are proof that slugging, piling on and uppercutting are rampant in the league, despite the watchfulness of the officials. In fact, it is plain from the stands that there are foul goings-on. It's rare, though, when a player squawks. Most of 'em are guilty of whatever they may be complaining about.

Sammy Baugh learned in his first professional game that the pro league is rougher than the college circuit. The first time Baugh found himself in possession of the ball, on an intercepted pass, he was knocked cold by a tackler. When he recovered consciousness, Mel Hein of the Giants was helping him up and saying, "Sammy, ain't this is a heluva way to make a living?"

RULES DEPT.—The irrepressible Julian Rice, who is alive with ideas about new rules for both baseball and football, is now on a veritable binge of revisions for football. He wants (1) to give the scoring team the option of converting the goal for one point from two yards out or two points from 12 yards out. Thus, he says, we'll have fewer tie games, with the teams given an opportunity to gamble.

He wants (2) to stop the clock after each play in the last three minutes of the game, and that proposal appears to have particular merit. The last few minutes of a ball game are a bore when a team is intent on freezing the ball with mere line plays which can be run to consume nearly a minute of play, leaving the trailing team helpless.

Mr. Rice is polling the football coaches and the writers on his ideas and has hired a certified public accountant to tabulate the votes. He states plainly, "you may wonder why I am going to all this trouble and expense, and here are some of my reasons: (1) I believe my ideas have merit and I'd like to see them adopted; (2) I think that rules should be made about 50 per cent for the players and 50 per cent for the spectators."

MUDDY FIELD DEPT.—It's raining in Philadelphia, and the weather for the Army-Navy game on Saturday is still very uncertain. The prospect of a muddy field is high, and all of a sudden the odds offered against Navy on a point basis have taken a drop. You could get Navy and 28 points against Army yesterday. Last night, the bookmakers were offering only 22 points.

The reason that on a wet field, Army will be handicapped in its precision attack, and that the scoring consequently will be down. The man most likely to be affected by a muddy field would be, of course, Glenn Davis. Speed is always handicapped by treacherous footing, and it's the pounding type of ball carrier like Doc Blanchard who is least affected.

Incidentally, they'll never stage that Glenn Davis-Clyde Scott race between the halves that was proposed by Oscar Hagberg, the Navy coach. The fans would love it, but the Army-Navy game never goes in for such frills. Davis would probably win it, anyway. Scott can do more things than Davis on a football field, but he can't keep up with him on a straightaway.

CUBAN DEPT.—No action is going to be taken against the ballplayers under contract with major league clubs who are playing against outlaw players in the Havana Winter League. This will be the last season, however, that big leaguers will be permitted to play winter ball in Cuba unless the Havana league cleans house.

The situation has been precipitated by the presence of six players who jumped organized baseball contracts to play in Mexico last season. Among them are the Ortiz brothers, Roberto and Olivero, who were with Washington. Players who jumped the Reds and Giants are also playing in Havana.

There are now 24 big leaguers who are picking up off-season money playing winter baseball in Cuba. They're going to get by with it this season, because Baseball Commissioner Chandler recognized that it would be harsh to crack down abruptly on Cuban baseball, which never did respect the rules against outlaws. Next year, though, will be different. Incidentally, the two men who run Cuban baseball are big leaguers themselves—Mike Gonzales, coach of the Cardinals, and Adolfo Luque, coach of the Giants.

'Skins Sign Back, Drill For Steelers

By Al Costello
Post Staff Writer

Th Redskins yesterday signed a new fullback said to be a bearcat. But he won't help the local Tribe in its remaining two games here with the Pittsburgh Steelers and New York Giants wherein the Indians will scalp or be scalped for the Eastern championship and a shot at the big playoff pot.

The fellow is John Brisco, a five-foot-eleven-inch, 225 gent who not only is reputed to crack a line a la Nagurski, but is a sprinter of 10-second proportions who can slant off-tackle or scoot around the ends with the speed of a Steve Van Buren or a Bill Paschal. He played freshman ball at University of Southern California and with the Hollywood Bears of the Pacific Coast League in 1940, '41, and '42 besides a lot of action with service tams on both football and battlefields.

He sighed for two years, '46 and '74, and will not report until the Redskins pitch their preseason training camp next August at Los Angeles, which, incidentally, is Brisco's hometown.

'Skins Workout in Rain

Meanwhile, the crestfallen Redskins disregarded rain and mud to splash through a tough workout yesterday in preparation for their fracas here Sunday with the revitalized Steelers. Coach Dud DeGroot, still burning from the sad Philadelphia story, continued plans to juggle around the offense which spluttered so badly against the Eagles and reiterated his determination to gamble on the little used but fresher backs such as Sal Rosato, Leo Presley, Bob DeFruiter, Merlyn Condit, Jim Gaffney, Bill DeCorrevont and Dick Todd, who at last is going to get a chance at carrying the leather, at which he is said to be pretty good.

The rigorous campaign is beginning to tell on workhorse Bob Seymour, Frank Akins and slight Steve Bagarus, who with Wilbur Moore comprised the regular starting backfield at the beginning of the season. Moore, of course, is through for the season with his broken army. Sammy Baugh and Frank Filchock, who do not take the banging around under the center in the "T" formation as do the other backs, will continue in the quarterback slot. Baugh, incidentally, wasn't seriously hurt in Philadelphia, although his nose is still scraped bare of skin.

DeGroot Hopes for Comeback

What is worrying DeGroot mostly right now is whether or not the squad can come back from its Philadelphia lacing and can pull itself together enough to whip the Steelers and Giants, which would give the Redskins a tie for the Eastern title if the Eagles win their pair of games with the Giants and Boston Yanks, which they figure to do.

DeGroot believes if the Redskins can come back and tie for the title they will reverse the tables on the Eagles in the playoff. All they have to do to get into that ball game is to win this Sunday and next, which from the way the Giants have come back so strongly isn't exactly a breeze. But the Eagles have just as tough a task.

Tecumseh Gets in the Mood

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Navy calls on the luck of its campus statue of Tecumseh for a victory over Army Saturday. War paint is supposed to make the old Indian more effective in jinxing the opposition.

Wet Field Might Hamper Cadets, Opines Hagberg

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 28 (AP).—The inevitable weather angle entered the Army-Navy game picture today as a pouring rain curtailed the Middies' last regular workout.

But Navy's board of strategy adopted a bright viewpoint toward the possibility of Saturday's all-important game with Army at Philadelphia being played in bad weather.

"I think Army would be hurt more by such conditions than we would," Comdr. Oscar E. Hagberg, head coach, said at a daily news conference.

"The potentially better team usually is slowed down more by a heavy field," he added. "Psychologically, Army unquestionably would like to have a dry, fast field.

"Another thing is that Bruce Smith, our passer, can throw a wet ball pretty well."

Hagberg answered the customary barrage of questions and disclosed that Navy's Clyde Scott and Tony Minisi would have the job of bulldogging Army's Glenn Davis, one of the outstanding backs that can run both right and left.

Scott will go after Davis on Army's wide plays to the right and Minisi when Davis goes the other way. Minisi is a lefthander and a "natural left" runner.

A personal duel between Scott and Davis may develop. Both are trackmen and reputedly the fastest men in college football in the country. Hagberg only yesterday suggested they be matched in a special race between halves Saturday.

Leon Bramlett, veteran Navy end, has an injured shoulder, but he will be able to start.

Hagberg has decided to hold a brief drill Thursday at 1 p. m. before boarding a bus for Baltimore en route to Philadelphia with four complete teams.

$10,000 Race Captured by $56.40 Shot

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Pimlico, Nov. 28.—C. Mahlon Kline's Pursuit Plane, showing a "sink-or-swim" effort won the $10,000 added Manley Steeplechase Handicap today over a course that was almost inundated by driving rain. To the tune of a $56.40 mutuel, the 5-year-old son of Challenger II came to the wire four lengths in front of Mrs. E. duPont Weir's Burma Road. Some 20 lengths farther back came Brookmeade Stable's Greek Flag to be third in a starting field of 10 going 2½ miles over 18 jumps.

Every jump was a water jump as Pursuit Plane toured the course in 5:25 2-5, the longest time ever required for the race first contested in 1916. Jockey S. O'Neill was in the winners' saddle.

War Battle Sets Pace

Winner of two cheap races this year, Pursuit Plane was allowed to race on his own courage early. War Battle, half of the Kent Miller entry, set a strong pace followed by Mercator, Rouge Dragon and Elkridge, the latter teamed with the pacemaker. The race was rather uneventful for the first 10 fences although Burma Road made a bad landing at the ninth.

War Battle finally quit; Floating Isle fell; Rouge Dragon lost rider; Merrator quit and during this shuffle Pursuit Plane moved to the front. Burma Road rallied to get closest to the pace, but was no match for Pursuit Plane in the final drive. Greek Flag showed little and was a beaten-off third.

The victory brought $9675 in earnings to Pursuit Plane and made his year's total $14,515.

Despite the sloppy going favorite players did ok on the program. Brookmeade Stable's Galladare won the third at $3; Main Chance Farm's Harvey's Pal took the fourth at $2.70 and John Marsch's Occupy accounted for the seventh at $5.30.

Didn't Stop Yesterday

J. P. Holton's Jo Agnes, a filly who stops or doesn't stop; kept going today and won the sixth race, the $5000 Artful. A length and a half behind the winner came Morris Wexler's Quien Es 10 lengths ahead of H. L. Straus' Quarter Moon, the only other starter. Apprentice W. Cherry rode the winner, his second of the day, over the 6 furlongs in 1:13 4-5. Jo Agnes, a quitter last time, was the longest shot in the vest pocket field and paid $8.40.

The daily double on the Win-Sue Farm's Pentagon, $27 winner of the first race, and Mrs. Bruce Campbell's Silver Tower, $18.60 winner of the second paid $142.40.

Between Races—Jockey Doug Dodson has signed to ride Bomar Stable's Billy Bumps in the mile and a sixteenth Welden Stakes here Friday . . . Billy Bumps was second to Star Pliot in the Pimlico Futurity . . . Gramps Image evidently won't race during the winter . . . Owner Howard Stack has shipped the son of War Hero to Jamaica . . . Count Speed, who strained a muscle in the Futurity, was shipped to Lexington, Ky., to rest over the winter. A brand new Bahr starting gate has been set up at Charles Town for the meeting opening on Saturday . . . Three former jockeys will be patrol judges at that track . . . They are Johnny McTaggart, Hap Gordon and Johnny Pons . . . Big stables are leaving for the South . . . Calumet shipped Armed and others to Hialeah this morning. Pot O'Luck stays for the $25,000 Pimlico Cup Handicap on Friday at the Marathon distance of 2½ miles . . . Every race is a distance affair on the closing program.

Missouri and Okla. Dominate All-Big Six

Kansas City, Nov. 28 (AP).—Flashy, pint-sized backs and big, mobile linemen dominate the Associated Press All-Big Six Conference football team for 1945.

The University of Missouri's champion Tigers and the Oklahoma Sooners, outgoing titlists and runners-up this season, each landed four men on the first team.

Iowa State's Cyclones, third-place winners, gained two berths, while the fifth-place Kansas Jayhawkers got one.

Assisting in the selection of the stars were coaches of the conference and sports writers who saw the teams in action.

Only two of the 1944 All-Stars—Tackle James Kekeris of Missouri and Jack Fathauer, Iowa State guard—repeated this year. Bill Dellastatious, Missouri's honor back of 1944, was around again, but he was injured most of the season.

Fullback Jack Venable of Oklahome, 190, is the only big boy in a backfield averaging 160 pounds.

Illinois Race Dates Allotted

Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP).—The Illinois Racing Board today allotted dates for the 1946 season to the six tracks operating within the State.

With Sportsman's Park opening the season April 27 with a 13-day spring meeting, the schedule will follow the pattern that has been in effect in recent years. The season will close November 2.

The schedule: Sportsman's Park, 13 days, April 27 through May 11; Lincoln Fields, 30 days, May 13 through June 15; Arlington Park, 36 days, June 17 through July 27; Washington Park, 31 days, July 29 through September 2; Hawthorne, 35 days, September 3 through October 12; Fairmount Park, 31 days, May 25 through July 6; Fairmount Park, 27 days, August 31 through October 37 Sportsman's Park, 13 days, October 14 through November 2.

Laird to Pilot Va. Tech Nine

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 27 (AP).—W. L. (Monk) Younger, director of athletics, announced today that G. F. (Red) Laird, recently honorably discharged naval officer, will coach the varsity baseball team at Virginia Tech this spring. Younger also announced that George Proctor will coach the varsity basketball team.

Laird is not a new man on the Blacksburg campus, for he coached the Tech baseball team from 1939 until he entered the Navy in 1943. In addition to serrving as head baseball coach in prewar days at Tech, he was freshman football and basketball mentor.

Army vs. Navy Tickets Asked Of Santa Claus

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 28 (AP).—Here's one pre-Christmas request to Santa Claus that certainly won't be filled:

Bobby Enelling of Jones Station wrote Santa, "Please, please send me two tickets to the Army-Navy game, so I can give them to my daddy." Bobby explained he wanted to surprise him.

Santa's Annapolis correspondent—the Evening Capital—observed, "Santa and his workers don't manufacture Army-Navy tickets and even if he put any in a Christmas stocking it would be a little late to use them."

McMillan Finally Visits Barber for Victory 'Clipping'

Newark, Ohio, Nov. 26 (AP).—Perhaps there's something to that long-haired Sampson fable after all.

A. N. (Bo) McMillin, the coach who brought Indiana University its first Western Conference football championship in 46 years, got a haircut here—the first since before the Hoosiers opened their Big Ten season by defeating Michigan last September 22.

"I ain't superstitious," McMillin said at a banquet celebrating Newark High School's second unbeaten and untied grid season in three years. "I didn't have time and I just decided to let well enough alone."

Pimlico Oval Under 'Dope' Investigation

Baltimore, Nov. 28 (AP).—H. J. Anslinger, Federal Narcotics Commissioner in Washington said today an investigation of the Pimlico race track here by his department was underway and would be continued.

Anslinger made the statement while attending a Maryland Racing Commission hearing on the suspension of Trainer J. D. Byers, one of whose animals was alleged to have been stimulated prior to winning a November 14 steeplechase race at Pimlico.

The Narcotics Commissioner declared the investigation was being conducted in cooperation with the Maryland Racing Commission.

Racing Commission Chairman George P. Mahoney confirmed Anslinger's statement. He said that Saliva and other samples taken from race horses for stimulation tests were being examined by the commission and not by narcotics men.

The Baltimore Evening Sun said Federal narcotics agents last night raided two barns at the Pimlico track, and quoted Mahoney as saying he had been notified of the raid in advance and had given his approval.

Earlier this season, one trainer was ruled off Maryland tracks by the commission because of alleged use of benzedrine on a horse and another man was ruled off for one year, for alleged use of caffeine. These stimulants are not considered narcotics.

Va. Eleven Tests Tarheels On Saturday

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—Virginia's soaches won't have to key up the Cavaliers for their closing game Saturday against North Carolina in Chapel Hill, which will be the fiftieth contest in Dixie's oldest continual football rivalry.

Any Bowl aspirations the Virginians might have had were left trampled in the mire of Griffith Stadium where their string of 14 games with na defeat was snapped short by Maryland's rugged veterans. The Cavaliers have one thought in mind, defeating North Carolina this weekend in Keenan Stadium.

The Virginia-Carolina series now stands tied with 23 victorits for both teams, and with three tie games since the two teams started play in 1892. Excluding the two seasons, 1917 and 1913, when Virginia had no teams in World War I, Cavaliers and Tar Heels have met every year but three.

Truman Letter Features Program For Service Game

By International News Service

The 200-page slick-paper program for Saturday's Army-Navy football game at Philadelphia hit the desks of selected sports editors today with President Truman's first general declaration on sports.

The President's message is prominently featured.

"The best thing about the Army-Navy football game this year," Mr. Truman wrote, "is that the unconditional surrender of our enemies on sea, on land and in the air makes it possible to resume this sports classic under circumstances that will permit the public at large to enjoy it.

"I hope the corps of Cadets and the regiment of Midshipmen will remember that some of those officers whose skills and courage and efficiency contributed so abundantly to the victory which gladdens the heart of the Nation, once tested their prowess on the football field as you are preparing to do this year.

"That thought should inspire both teams to do their best when they met on December first."

Former Stars Of Olympics Hold Reunion

Philadelphia, Nov. 8 (AP).—About 200 America's greatest athletes—those who participated in Olympic games from 1896 to the present day— will gather in a "silver jubilee" reunion tomorrow in the first affair of its kind.

A group of Philadelphians who performed in the 1920 Olympic games in paris, headed by Scullers Jack Kelly and Paul Costello and trackster Lawson Robertson, are sponsoring the event in an effort to have athletes renew old friendships.

"We're also trying to attract attention to Philadelphia, "Costello said, "in hopes of having this city the site of the 1952 games."

Among those who'll be on hand are Joie Ray, Chicago Miler; Mrs. Eleanor Holm Rose, former backstroke champion, Helen Meaney, who won a diving title at 14 years of age; Pete and Joe Zivic, members of the 1920 boxing team and brothers of Pittsburgh's former welterweight champion, Fritzie.

Highlight of the affair will be the reunion of the 1900 Paris Olympic track team, which includes noted University of Pennsylvania athletes Josiah C. MCCracken, J. W. Tewksbury, M. B. Colket, W. P. Remington, Ed Bushnell and Truxtun Hare.

Chattanooga Faces Ole Miss Today

Chattanooga, Nov. 28 (AP).—Turkey and a football battle between the rebounding Mississippi Rebels and the dangerous University of Chattanooga Moccasins will be served up here tomorrow, Tennessee Thanksgiving Day.

It's the only college game of the day in the Southeast and dopesters are giving Ole Miss only a slight edge.

The meeting is the first in the history of the two schools.

Wenskunas, Watts Named 'Valuable'

Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP).—Mac Wenskunias, discharged Marine lieutenant who played center for Illinois this season, and Harold Watts, Michigan's 167-pound pivot man, last night were named the most valuable players of their teams by other squad members.

Wenskunas played fullback for Illinois before entering the service in 1942. Watts, a Navy V-12 trainee, was transferred from Michigan before the Wolverines' final two games. Their selections make them eligible to compete in another poll for the Chicago Tribune award which annually goes to te most valuable gridder in the Western Conference.

Rain Ignored By Boys Town In Long Drill

Boys Town's (Nebr.) undefeated footballers prepared to be good "mudders" in case rainfall should turn Bryd Stadiunm inta ahazardous quagmire in tomorrow night's game against Gonzaga. Defying the rainstorm that swept the District yesterday, the Nebraskans went through the usual long blocking and tackling drill out on the College Park field.

Coach Skip Palrang's squad went through the session at almost full strength, with only Quarterback Jimmy Mitchell absent. Mitchell, who caught a severe cold when the team arrived Monday, was suffering from a nose bleed, but it was believed the Boys Town star would recover in time to answer the kickoff Friday.

Meanwhile, Gonzaga Coach Joe Kozik conducted indoor chalk talk with his squad. Despite slight injuries suffered by Fullback Hngh Logan and Quarterback Dick Redmond in the hard-fought St. John's game on Thanksgiving, the Purple Eagles expected to be at full strength.

The Boys Town squad is expected to take off time from practice today to watch the Senate in session, while Father E. J. Flanagan, founder and director of Boys Town, will personally invvite President Harry S. Truman to attend the game when he meets the Chief Executive at 12:30 today. He is also expected to extend invitations to Attorney General Tom Clarke and Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation J. Edgar Hoover, whom he will also visit today.

Lions, Rovers Battle Tomorrow

An opportuntiy to ite New York's Rovers for third place in the Eastern Hockey League race awaits Washington's Lions in tomorrow night's match on Uline ice at 8:30 o'clock.

The Lions, impressive in their 2-all deadlock with the champion Boston Olympics Tuesday night, will be at full strength for the Rapid Rovers, and will be conceded a 50-50 chance of coming through. The teams are all even to date as the result of a victory apiece and a tie.

The Lions probably will be materially bolstered for tomorow night's match when Charley Kraiger, a big winger from Fort Worth, Tex., reports. Kraiger, recently discharged from the Canadian navy, formerly played on the same line with Coach Maxie Bennett with the Buffale Bisons, and is described as an aggressive and colorful team man with an opportune scoring punch.

Rebel Upset Of Tide Seen As Possible

State College, Miss., Nov. 28 (AP). The Mississippi State Maroons, sidetracked all the way from glory to oblivion by a couple of fumbles, can take plenty of glitter off the Rose Bowl Saturday.

To do it, they must beat mighty Alabama, the guest team in the Pasadena New Year's Day classic. That's a huge order for any club; and a cursory glance at the respective records would indicate that the Maroons are foolhardy to entertain the mere dream of toppling the crushing Crimson Tide.

But a look behind the bare scores reveals the interesting fact that the Maroons could have been high up among the Nation's unbeaten teams if they could have avoided only two of the innumberable breaks that have gone against them this season.

State has been beaten twice, each time by one point—14 to 13 by Tulane, and 7 to 6 by University of Mississippi. Against Tulane, a State back fumbled with second down and three to go for a touchdown, and a Tulanian recovered. The Maroons dropped the ball six times while playing Ole Miss, and lost it three times.

Once State's ace Back, Harper Davis, scampered across the Ole Miss goal while the ball bolted from his hands, out of bounds on the 4-yard line. If it had gone out on the two, State would have had a first down there.

And in each of those two losing games, State receivers dropped two touchdown passes.

Philippines Issue Net Cup Challenge

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—The Philippine Islands have entered a challenge for the Davis Cup in 1946 and have elected to play in the American zone, Walter L. Pate, chairman of the Davis Cup committee of management for the American zone, said today. The challenge came in a radiogram from the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation. Other nations which already have challenged for the historic tennis trophy now held by Australia include the United States and Canada, which also will play in the American zone.

Dickey to Quit As Active Player; Plans Uncertain

Memphis, Nov. 28 (AP).—Lieut. William M. (Bill) Dickey expects to doff his Navy blues in a couple of months but says he probably won't replace them with the familiar mask and shin guards.

At 38, the veteran catcher of the New York Yankees is planning to retire from active play.

"I haven't made any plans yet," the drawling Arkansan asserted today, "but I doubt that I'll do any more catching.

"I haven't played any baseball in two years, you know, and that's a long layoff for an old guy like me."

Dickey has just returned to the States after serving 15 months as athletic director of the naval program at Pearl Harbor. He has been assigned to the athletic department at the Naval Air Station here, pending a discharge expected around the first of the year.

Tigers' Critical Western Clash Is Washed Out

The downpour that transformed Wilson High's gridiron into soggy marshland yesterday forced postponement of the important Wilson-Western interhigh football game until tomorrow at 3 p. m.

On this game, which was originally slated for October 5, but was postponed because of rain, rides Wilson's chances for a playoff berth. A defeat for the Green Tigers would drop them into third place and lift Coolidge's Colts into second place and a championship game with Eastern's first-place Ramblers. A tie in the Wilson-Western game would necessitate a playof for second place between Coolidge and Wilson.

Eight Teams in Pro Loop

Richmond, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—Expansion of the Dixie professional football league's circuit from six to eight teams will be a major item for consideration by operators at their meeting December 15-16 at Norfolk.

Navy's Don Whitmire In 'Blanchard Role'

Don Whitmire, Navy's No. 1 tackle last season, is not eligible for Saturday game but he still plays an important role in the Middies' preparations.

In scrimmages this week the 225-pound Whitmire has donned jersey "35," the number worn by "Doc" Blanchard, Army's pulverizing fullback.

"Tell the kids to lay it on me because I'm Blanchard," he said to Navy's coaches. "I'll yell if they give me too much."

All season, Whitmire has been a sort of father confessor to the players, listening to their problems and giving them playing advice.

But it remains to be seen whether Whitmire has whispered something to Bo Coppedge, playing Don's old tackle position, that will enable Navy to stop Blanchard.

Army End Poole Is on Sick List

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 28 (U.P.).—End Barney Poole joined Quarterback Arnold Tucker on the sick list today but both of the Army football stars were expected to be ready for action when the undefeated Cadets face Navy at Philadelphia Saturday.

Poole was suffering from a cold and had a temperature of 100 but the big Gloster, Miss., boy was not in the infirmary.

Tucker still was in the post hospital with a temperature of 101 due to a light attack of influenza but was reported "improving rapidly." The Miami, Fla., athlete was expected to be okayed tomorrow by the team physician, Capt. Robert Bayle.

Meanwhile, the rest of the varsity team scrimmaged defensively against Navy plays with the entire Cadet corps watching the proceedings.

Chicubs Purchase 11th Farm Team

Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs today announced addition of an eleventh minor league club to their farm system, the Hutchinson (Kans.) team in the revived Class C Western Association.

The Cub office said it would announce acquisition of "a few more farm clubs at the minor league meeting in Columbus next week. The Cubs have dropped their sponsorship of the Leaksville (N. C.) club in the Class C Carolina League, the office disclosed.

Plenty of Mileage

San Francisco, Nov. 28 (AP).—The Fourth Air Force football squad traveled some 15,000 miles by air during the course of its 1945 schedule and Coach John Baker said that mode of transportation can't be beat.

"It gets you there in a hurry and the boys don't have so many travel kinks to iron out," he said.

Oil Bowl Awaits Other Selections

Houston, Tex., Nov. 28 (U.P.).—Oil Bowl promoters were waiting today for the Orange and Cotton Bowl pairings to be completed before naming the teams to meet here January 1.

"We can't run much competition to them," said Bowl President Holly M. Brock in reference to the Miami and Dallas games. He said the announcement of the Oil Bowl teams probably would be made Friday but declined to speculate on their identity.

Most likely prospects appeared to include Tulsa, Louisiana State, Temple, Tennessee, Georgia and Mississippi State.

Macks Sell Three To Toronto Club

Toronto, Nov. 28 (AP).—Peter Campbell, president of the Toronto International League baseball club, today acquired three players from the Philadelphia Athletics. They were Second Baseman Fred Chapman, Shortstop Red Wilkins and Third Baseman Al Brancato. Campbell said that another infielder, Jack Houch, had been returned to the Maple Leafs on option and that he had been promised three pitchers by Philadelphia

Record Enrty Seen For Pin Tourney

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 28 (U.P.).—A record entry was predicted today for the world championship bowling tournament here next March on the basis of early reservations made by American Bowling Congress teams.

"The ABC now has 4100 team reservations on the books," reported George A. Obenauer, secretary of the Buffalo Bowling Association. "Add to this the assurance of 1000 booster teams in Buffalo, and we have more than 5000."

Ailing Terps Drill Indoors For S. C. Clash

By Newton Bowers
Post Staff Writer

Maryland's head football coach, Paul (Bear) Bryant—of the Alabama Bryants, suh—took one look at his practice field yesterday and decided it resembled "chocolate pudding" more than terra firma, so the Terps' drill session was confined to the giant hall in the university armory.

Bonk

The Terrapins, who in just two days will take on University of South Carolina's improved Gamecocks in Columbia, S. C., were sent through a series of offensive and defensive plays on the hard gym floor, and, as during the past three days, a trio of regulars merely watched the proceedings.

Dick Johnston, rugged guard and Maryland's candidate for all-Southern Conference; Emile Fritz, another guard, and Center John Schrecongost all missed the drills, while Hammerin' Hank Bonk, agile fullback, played a small part in the workouts.

Bonk banged up his legs considerably in the Virginia battle last Saturday and will be restricted to little action against the Gamecocks.

And, with Johnston, Fritz and Schrecongost, all of whom are also having trouble with their legs, the situation remains pretty much the same. Bryant's outlook was pretty gloomy yesterday on the possibility that these boys will be in the lineup.

Gerald Barkalow, a second-stringer, will replace Schrecongost at center, and Eddie Schwarz, who has been alternating with Fritz all season, will start at guard. A starting guard successor to Johnston hasn't been named at yet.

The Terps thus far in the week have failed to prepare for South Carolina's No. 1 offensive—passing. The many casualties from the Virginia game and yesterday's indoor session have prevented much work in this department, and the Terps realize they will get plenty of passing opposition from the Gamecocks, mostly from peanut back Don Hurleson.

Hurleson sports one of the best passing records in the South. The diminutive halfback's passing featured the Gamecocks' last two games—both ties—as he completed 15 aerials in 18 attempts for a total of 288 yards.

The Terps will embark tonight at midnight for Columbia, where they will undergo a light workout tomorrow in Carolina Stadium.

Japan Can Pay Indemnity, Pauley Asserts

Tokyo, Nov. 28 (U.P.).—Edwin S. Pauley, President Truman's personal representative for Japanese reparations, said today he believed that Japan could immediately pay the equivalent of "several billion" dollars but the Allies should not expect much in the way of long-term reparations.

He said the Japanese could make immediate payment with their investments in Korea, Manchuria, China, Formosa, the Philippines, Netherlands East Indies and Malaya.

Pauley said he would recommend to the President the general policy of taking all Japanese surpluses above the costs of the Allied occupation, and above what is needed to give the people a living standard not higher than the average throughout Asia.

Pauley revealed that Russia thus far had not granted permission for him to enter Korea and Manchuria to examine Japanese investments. He said the State Department and United States Embassy had asked Moscow on November 16 for permission.

He indicated that Japanese investments in Korea and Manchuria totaled upward of three billion dollars. He said he had heard rumors that the Russians were removing huge quantities of equipment and supplies from Manchuria, but had no confirmation.

Conzelman Back With '46 Cards

Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP).—Jimmy Conzelman, one of football's most colorful personalities, will return to the Chicago Cardinals of the National Footbal League as head coach next fall.

Conzelman resigned as the Cardinal's coach in June, 1943, to become assistant to Donald L. Barnes, then president of the St. Louis Browns. During the three-year span with the Browns, Conzelman also retained his position as vice president of the Cardinals.

M.-D. Harriers Vie Here Tomorrow

Discontinued last year because of the war, the Fourth Annual Cross Country championship of the Mason-Dixon conference will be held at Gallaudet College Friday afternoon, November 30, over a 4-mile course.

In the three previous championships Bridgewater won in 1'41, Gallaudet in 1943 and Mount St. Marys in 1943. Mount St. Marys the defending champion will not have a team entered this year.

Five schols have entered teams this year. Bridgewater College, Catholic U., U. of Delaware, Gallaudet College and Johns Hopkins.

Utah, Muhlenberg In Cage Opener

Philadephia, Nov. 27 (AP).—The University of Utah, national champion two years ago, and Muhlenberg, which last year beat Penn's Eastern intercollegiate champions, will headline the first of 13 basketball double-headers at Convention Hall here Saturday.

Utah will tackle St. Joseph's while Muhlenberg faces an ambitious Temple team, still rankled by an upset defeat by the Mule five two years ago.

I See by the Papers

Gift Wrapper, Card Shoppers On Job Early

Washington's first "Peace on Earth" Christmas in five years looks like the biggest ever, but Santa Claus will have to deliver most of his gifts unwrapped.

Early shoppers, The Post learned yesterday, are gobbling up ribbon, cord, seals and fancy paper almost as fast as they hit the counter. Harry S. Schulman of Greeting Card, Inc., one of the city's largest wholesalers, estimated current sales of wrapping material were "7 to 8 times" as great as this time last year.

Supplies Still Scarce

"The trouble," said Schulman, "is that there is very little, if any more of that material available this year than last—and you know how scarce it was then."

Greeting cards, too, are selling at an unprecedented rate, but the supply at present appears adequate. Most of them are simpler than before, without much handwork, due to a labor shortage, and with an emphasis on "homecoming."

"Almost entirely gone," according to the Greeting Card Industry of New York City, "are the sophisticated, tongue-in-cheek designs of the modernistic school. And with victory accomplished, gone too are the victory motifs, the military and naval touches that colored many wartime Christmas greetings."

Are Really "Christmasy"

Dozens of designs "showing cozy farmhouses in the snow under blue Christmas skies" and "innumerable living room scenes showing the Christmas tree shining in the corner, the holly on the stair rail and the mistletoe hung from the archway" set the 1945 Christmas card mode.

Verses, too, are homey, says the national greeting card organization, with such simple sentiments as these predominating:

"It's Christmas again,
And as before,
I wish you the best
And a little bit more."

Indonesian Truce Request Brings Threat

Batavia, Java, Nov. 28 (AP).—British authorities at Bandoeng, replying to an Indonesian request for a truce, issued an ultimatum today that any Indonesian found in the northern half of the summer capital after noon tomorrow would be shot.

The ultimatum was announced to the Indonesian "governor" of West Java when he appeared at British headquarters under a white flag and asked the British to halt military actions at Bandoeng.

Situation Still Tense

The situation in Bandoeng continued tense, with Indonesians keeping up intermittent rifle fire at the Homman Hotel where several hundred civilian internees were quartered. Allied officials said all activities of the Red Cross and the organization for the recovery of Allied prisoners of war and internees had been brought to a standstill.

The disorders imperiled more than 60,000 Allied internees from Western Java who have been concentrated in the summer capital, awaiting evacuation.

Shell Ungaran Second Day

British warships in Semarang Harbor for the second day shelled an Indonesian strongpoint at Ungaran, about midway between Semarang and Ambarawa, the Dutch news agency Aneta said. British positions at Ambarawa and an internment camp nearby were shelled by the Indonesians, it added.

Aneta said reconnaissance planes had seen Indonesian reinforcements moving toward Ambarawa from Magelang, 20 miles to the southwest, and had spotted Indonesian forces south and southwest of Ambarawa felling trees, laying mines and digging positions.

At the naval base of Soerabaja, where additional Indian troops were landed from ships, the British made further progress in cleaning out Indonesian resistance.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 16, Victim of Hostile Stepmother's Constant Abuse Behind Father's Back, Asks Whether to Leave; Neighbors Are Indignant

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl of 16 and I have a very hard time at home. I go to school and will soon be finished. My problem is this: I have a stepmother and we do not get along at all well. I knew her before she married my father and she was very nice then. But now she is mean to me because she does not like me. She has told me so many times.

She is employed and I do all the housework and cooking except on Sundays. I cannot talk to a boy because of her and she tries to whip me. She strikes me with anything she has in her hand or anything within reach. I have been sore for weeks from her blows. At present she is not speaking to me. Not that I mind, but I am not that bad. She calls me all kinds of names and tells me I am a low-down girl.

Children Ape Woman's Ways

MY FATHER is a businessman, and he does all these things when he is not at home. The neighbors are telling it bit by bit and he does not like it, I know. If I were to tell him the truth—which I haven't—my stepmother would take revenge on me when he is away. I have two brothers at home and a sister who boss me around, yet they are all younger than I am.

I want you to tell me if I should go away from home for some time. I have an aunt who would take care of me. I cannot stand much more of this beating and name-calling. Besides the housework I have to do my own washing and ironing, which I don't mind; but it leaves me no time at all for the home work the school expects of me. As a result I am failing in my grades at the present time. Please advise me. S. G.

A Woman Unfit For Authority

DEAR S. G.: You may have a whole flock of faults, little or big. Most of us do. And possibly your personality just naturally grates on your stepmother's nerves. But somehow, from the tone of your letter, I think you are a grand girl—or would be, given a decent chance to grow.

In any event, I believe you have tried to give an honest picture of the situation. And I say this: No matter what kind of a person you are, even if you were lazy, obstreperous and boy-crazy at this time, as many girls are temporarily in their middle teens—but as you could hardly be, with so much labor wrung from you,—still there can be no justification for your stepmother's sneaking and vicious abuse of you.

It is the work of a woman unfit to exercise authority over youngsters. And the harm she does you may be transient and trivial compared to the psychological damage she is doing the younger children, in making them witness to such foul play. The fact that they are following her example of browbeating you suggests that she has already perverted their sensibilities to a shocking degree, possibly fomenting in them a swaggering sadist complex towards the outcast and defenseless.

Her Villainy Must Be Exposed

FOR wholesome mental and spiritual development, upon which healthy character depends, children should receive from parents—or any others who take their place—much love and patient consideration, much encouragement and faith in their right intent, and the constant lift of a sustaining philosophy which beholds God everywhere, "above all and through all and in us all."

Yet here is your stepmother waging a brutal cunning campaign to degrade and demoralize you, treating you despicably, calling you bad. She is a wicked woman. And so, if you have an aunt who would take you under her wing, you certainly should appeal to her to help you escape from this impossibly ugly situation. You need a responsible person to engineer your getaway; because if you simply walked out, no doubt your stepmother would spread a scandalous rumor that you ran off disreputably—simply to save her own face with your father. M. H.

Martha Ellyn's Platter Chatter

School Lunches Need One Hot Dish

Children's noonday lunch, whether it be school cafeteria style, a packed lunch box, or the dashed-home-for kind, should contain at least one nourishing hot dish. Now that we are having cold weather the little ones should not be fed a cold sandwich.

Ideal are canned soups—the condensed kind that contain the full essence of their goodness concentrated, all ready to be diluted with milk or water, then heated and served.

Soups can go to school hot and hearty packed in the lunch box thermos. At home their preparation is a last-minute kitchen matter. Soups made of cream, vegetables and meats provide nutritive elements important to children's nourishment. Their warmth whets fagged small fry appetites. Their sturdiness helps complete a satisfying meal with salad, a sandwich and a fruit dessert, or custard or perhaps cookies.

Here are some suggested school children's luncheon menus. These are of the kind that can be packed in the school lunch box. Some schools have milk service so that only the soup has to be placed in the thermos.

School Children's Lunches

Cream of Tomato Soup Crackers
Peanut Butter and Jelly Sandwich
Baked Apple Milk

Cream of Green Pea Soup Crackers
Devilled Egg Sandwich
Fruit Salad Milk

Condensed Beef Noodle Soup
Crackers
Cottage Cheese, Raisin, Chopped Prune Filling on Whole Wheat Bread
Carrot Strips Sweet Gherkins
Oatmeal Cookies Milk

The following recipe makes unspiced oatmeal cookies. These are splendid cookies for school children:

OATMEAL COOKIES

Sift ½ cup sugar. Beat until soft 6 tablespoons butter and add the sugar gradually. Blend these ingredients until they are creamy. Add 1¼ cups rolled oats. Sift before measuring ¾ cup cake flour. Resift with ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda and ½ teaspoon cream of tartar. Add the sifted ingredients to the batter alternately with ¼ cup water and 1 teaspoon vanilla combined with the water. Roll the dough to thickness of ⅛ inch. Cut into cookie shapes. Bake on a greased sheet in hot oven, for 10 to 12 minutes.

SOUP'S THE THING when a hot, nourishing dish is needed for school children's noonday meal. The food pictured is of the kind that can be carried to school in lunchbox equipped with thermos, or just as good when served in the home

Robert Sherrods To Reoccupy Home

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherror are down from New York and staying at the Mayflower for a few days. Purpose of their visit is to make arrangements for occupying their house here which, for the past two years, has been leased by Col. Kenneth Mackessack, British Military Attaehe.

Mr. Sherrod, war correspondent and author of the new book "On to Westward," expects to leave soon for China. His wife and two little sons, John and Robert, who have been residing in New York, will spend the winter at the Sherrod residence here and will join Mr. Sherrod in China some time next summer.

Gardners Here To Visit Belsers

Being entertained at a series of informal parties by old friends in Washington are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Henry Gardner, who moved recently to Pittsburgh, Pa. The Gardners are stopping at the Washington Hotel, but tomorrow will become house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Dana Belser. The foursome plan to leave Saturday to attend the Army and Navy game in Philadelphia.

Thomases Will Live In Columbus, Ohio

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Allison Thomas, who were married Saturday, will make their home in Columbus, Ohio.

The bride is the former Miss Bernice Waddoups, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Anson Waddoups, Bountiful, Utah. The ceremony took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Frederick Preston, Dickerson, Md.

Officiating at the 4 p. m. service was the Rev. Glendale Burton. The bride wore a suit of aqua wool with shell-pink accessories and carried a bouquet of white orchids and roses. Immediately after the ceremony a reception was held at the Preston home.

Mrs. Thomas recently returned from India, where as a member of the Wacs she was stationed in Calcutta. She received her education in Hawaii and at the University of Utah. The bridegroom attended Ohio State University and while in the Army was stationed in Calcutta.

Capitalites Attend Dinner Feting New Mexican Diplomat, Wife

Many prominent Washingtonians are returning today from New York, where they attended a dinner at the Hotel Plaza last night in honor of the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de los Monteros. Hundreds of friends from Mexico and the United States were on hand to welcome the new Ambassador and his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Neale were joint hosts with Senor Rodolfo Fernandez, Attache to the Mexican Embassy, and Senora de Fernandez, to 50 guests from Washington. Lieut. Gen. Ira Eakers and Mrs. Eakers were at the Neale table.

A reception preceded the dinner in the Baroque Room of the hotel, where 300 guests were invited to meet the new Ambassador. The reception committee was headed by Mr. and Mrs. John Glenn and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Neale. Assisting were Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Brooks, Mr. and Mrs. James S. Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Dorland, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Drumm, Mr. and Mrs. G. Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. Aurelio L. Gallardo, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome S. Hess, Mr. and Mrs. Alfonso Manero, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. White, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Zellers and Sir John Wiseman.

More than 1000 guests gathered for dinner in the grand ballroom, which was decorated with the flags of the two nations. Each guest was presented with a small bouquet of flowers flown from Mexico in a special plane. Music was furnished by orchestras from both countries and the Ambassador, introduced by Mr. Glenn, made an international broadcast.

Guests at the Ambassador's table included members of his embassy staff, most of whom are returning to Washington this morning.

Senor and Senora de Fernandez remained in New York with friends and will attend the Army-Navy football game Saturday.

Srta. de Sarmiento Will Be Honored At Dance, Cocktails

Invitations have been issued to members and guests of El Circulo Interamericano for a tea dance to be given in honor of Senorita Graciela Sarmiento, daughter of Col. Jorge Sarmiento, Military Attache of the Peruvian Embassy, and Senora Sarmiento. The dance will be held at the Potomac Boat Club Sunday from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m.

Senorita Sarmiento will be honored at a "good neighbor" cocktail party by the Misses Dorothea and Elenita Dyer preceding the dance.

Dance committee members include the Misses Tucker Andrews, Patricia Parker, Betsy Lyon, Maisie Howard and Claire Snow, and Senortas Zulema Fernandez, Maruja and Rotario Diez.

Tennessee Visitors Feted by Several

Swelling the ranks of Tennesseans gathering here in anticipation of the Army-Navy game are Mrs. Stovall Jeter, Mrs. Mary Allie Taylor, Mrs. George Sheats, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Woodmansee and Taft Moody, all of Memphis.

The first three ladies arrived Saturday and are house guests of Representative and Mrs. Clifford Davis of Tennessee. The Woodmansees and Mr. Moody came up yesterday and are stopping at the Shoreham.

Several parties are being given for the visitors. Last night Mr. and Mrs. Davis were hosts at dinner for the group from Tennessee and Friday the entire party will leave together for Philadelphia.

Club Notes

Board Head Asks Active Club Agenda

By Genevieve Reynolds

The executive board of the General Federation of Women's Clubs opened its three-day conclave last night at Hotel Statler, with Mrs. La Fell Dickinson, president, sounding the keynote for an active national and international program.

She called up on her listeners to support the creation of an opium advisory committee responsible directly to the Social and Economic Council of the United Nations Organization. "We as individuals and groups must continue intelligent support of the UNO and affiliated international organizations and thus guide them past every out of step advance to working cooperative institutions," she explained.

"Meanwhile, we are going to need, in fact we shall probably always need to maintain peace, a strong reserve of military trained personnel in this country," she continued. "That is why I spoke before the Military Affairs Committee, not for our organization, but as an individual, in behalf of a unversal military traing law. My objective is peace—not war. I believe such training one of the esentials to world peace."

Calls on General Bradley

Mrs. Dickinson said that she had called upon Gen. Omar N. Bradley recently to offer the services of 2,500,000 clubwomen to the Veterans' Administration. The general's first request was the federation's help to assist servicemen and their families find places to live.

The club president reviewed the federation's youth conservation projects, and pointed out that wholesome recreational and organizational projects must be set up in every community. "We want it distinctly understood that while we are working in cooperation with established youth-serving organizations, we are especially interested in the less privileged youth of the community, particularly girls who are not reached by other organizations," she asserted. "I believe youth guidance is futile in many instances without parental guidance. I hope we can develop a practical parental guidance program."

Mrs. Oscar A. Ahlgren, recording secretary and member of the federation's board of directors, suggested that all women unite in a crusade to put capable women of both political parties into public office.

Put Women in Office

"Get them appointed to school boards. Every single community in the United States should have a woman on the school board. Get women appointed to health, park, library and planning boards," she urged. "Persuade women to run for local, county and State offices. Let's put women in Congres, and especially in our State Legislatures.

"That's politics, you say," continued Mrs. Ahlgren. "In Indiana we do not call it politics. We call it citizenship."

Mrs. Hiram C. Houghton, second vice president, was among others making brief speeches.

Preceding the opening meeting, Mrs. Dickinson entertained the executive board at tea.

When the international outlook section of the Twentieth Century Club convenes for a luncheon meeting, Monday at 12:30 p. m., at the YWCA, Jan Wazelaski, economic adviser for 10 years to the former Polish Foreign Office, will discuss "Postwar Poland." Wazelaski also was formerly economic adviser to the Polish Embassy here. Mrs. Henry Arctowski, vice chairman of the section, arranged the programs. Luncheon reservations must be made before noon Saturday with Mrs. Francis M. Goodwin, Michigan 3725.

All classics, standard English and American novels, as well as essays, will be welcome donations to the international outlook section's "Books for Russia" drive, according to Mrs. Philip Sydney Smith, chairman.

Coming Events . . .

Junior Alliance has called a special board meeting for noon tomorrow at Kenwood Country Club. Mrs. Donald Lathrom will be hostess. . . . Washington Alumnae Association of Alpha Delta Pi will meet today at 8:15 p. m. in the sorority hall, 2129 G st. nw. Mrs. Andre Simonpietri (nee Grace Boland), will give an illustrated talk on "Modern Mexico." The sorority's Christmas project of friendship boxes for children of war-torn countries will be explained and exhibited by Mrs. Jean James Demarest. For reservations, telephone either Mrs. J. M. Berry, Emerson 2449, or Mrs. J. R. Kirkland, Randolph 3442. . . . Chapter E, PEO, will be hostess at a reciprocity luncheon Wednesday, December 5 at 12:30 p. m., at the YWCA, 17th and K sts. nw. A round table meeting at 11 a. m. will precede the luncheon. Reservations should be made with Mrs. S. C. Tupman, Georgia 3641, before noon Monday. . . . District of Columbia Women's Auxilitary, Izaak Walton League of America, will meet tomorrow with Mrs. W. S. Brothers, 3840 Beecher st. nw. Election of officers will be main feature. . . .

Mary Switzer, Lieut. Cheek Exchange Vows

In a princess gown of white satin with seed-pearl trim, Miss Mary Josephine Switzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee S. Switzer, Weston, W. Va., became the bride last Thursday of Lieut. William Alston Cheek, USNR, son of Mrs. L. P. Cheek, Pelican, La., in the Memorial Chapel of Walter Reed Hospital. Nuptial vows were read by the Rev. F. O'Dowd.

The bridal veil of illusion was caught with a Juliet cap of seed pearls, and white roses with orchid center fashioned the bouquet. Mr. Switzer gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. Thomas J. Gillooly, matron of honor, was costumed in white net and lace with headpiece of blue and white pompons and bouquet of matching chrysanthemums. The Misses Constance and Jean Marie Switzer, sister of the bride, were bridesmaids in gowns of blue net and lace. Their headpieces and bouquets were fashioned of baby white chrysanthemums.

Best man was Anthony R. Switzer, brother of the bride, and ushers included Lieut. Comdr. William Burlinger, Robert M. Scott and Capt. Thomas J. Gillooly.

A reception followed in the Madison Suite, Wardman Park. Mrs. Switzer, mother of the bride, received in a wine-colored gown with orchid corsage and black accessories.

Mrs. Newfield Visiting Here

Mrs. Albert Newfield, Hartford, Conn., is spending several weeks here at the Shoreham before going to Florida for the remainder of the winter.

Mrs. Louis Steiner and her daughter, Miss Lorraine Steiner, are in St. Louis for a two-week visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert are spending several days in New York where they are guests at the Ritz-Carlton.

TERRY

I'LL SEE WHAT YOU'RE BROKEN IF IT'S THE LAST THING I DO...
DON'T THINK I WANTED TO STILL YOU, MISTER—BUT YOU HAD NO BUSINESS TRYING TO GO BY ON THE FLIGHT DECK...THIS IS A MILITARY AIRCRAFT AND YOU TAKE ORDERS FROM THE PILOT...
I THINK YOU'RE A NERD, TERRY! THERE, I SAID IT, AND I'M GLAD—V'HOUR, GLAD!
OH, STOP, FOB...I FELT LIKE A FOOL DOING JUDO ON AN OLDER GUY—HE'S OUT OF CONDITION...AND I'LL PROBABLY BE COURTMARTIALED FOR SLAPPING A CIVILIAN AROUND...

—AN' HE SAID HE WAS MR. BEANY'S CLOSEST FRIEND AN' HAD BEEN WITH 'IM WHEN HE—OH DEAR...WHEN HE DIED... OH ISN'T IT A PITY... POOR MR. BEANY...
HOW D'YA LIKE THAT, JOE? I'D KILL 'IM...WAIT'LL 'YA HEAR THE REST!
GOLLY! SH-H... BEANY...GO ON, 'ANASTASIA... LUCKY ANAST-ASIA DIDN'T KNOW BEANY WAS HOME ALIVE!
AN' IF MIZ BOGART WOULD SEND A HUNDRED DOLLARS SO HE COULD PAY FOR HIS HOTEL AN' CAR FARE THERE ETC, ETC, ETC...
LET ME SEE ARTHUR WOLGER... POST OFFICE BOX 3... SCRANTON
OH DEAR... WHAT A TRAGEDY.
THIS MAY BE THE ONE I'M LOOKING FOR—GOSH WHAT A BREAK...I'M LEAVING FOR SCRANTON TO-NITE!
D'YOU KNOW THE RAT JOE? I'LL KILL 'IM...THE RAT...
THAT'S WHY I CAME HERE. I'M LOOKIN' FOR HIM OR A GUY WHO PULLED IT ON ONE OF OUR NEIGH-BORS. IT'S CALLED THE G.I. RACKET.

MARY WORTH

GREAT GUNS! TWO A.M.! I'D NO IDEA WE HAD TALKED THAT LONG--!
I'LL HAVE TO ADMIT THAT CHICHI HAS A SIDE TO HER CHARACTER I HADN'T GIVEN HER CREDIT FOR!... SHE'S UNDERSTANDING, SYMPATHETIC --AND REALLY PRETTY WISE!....
UH, PROFESSOR WINSTON! A LADY HAS BEEN PHONIN' YOU!--EVER' HALF HOUR SINCE MIDNIGHT!
...SUE!! THANKS! I DON'T WANT TO BE DISTURBED ANY MORE TONIGHT!
DON'T TELL ME THE LOCAL LAMB IS WEARIN' A NEW WOLFSKIN COAT?
I DUNNO! --BUT THAT WHITE STUFF ON HIS SHOULDER LOOKS MORE LIKE FACE POWDER THAN CHALK DUST!

MYRTLE

WE'VE GOT A SURPRISE FOR YOU, POP. MOM IS ALL DRESSED UP PRETTY!
WE THOUGHT YOU'D SAY THAT!
GEE, SUSIE, THIS IS SWELL TO COME HOME AND FIND A BEAUTIFUL WIFE WAITING TO WELCOME ME!
BUT YOU CAN'T GET DINNER IN THOSE CLOTHES!
DINNER WON'T GET ITSELF!
I'LL TELL YOU — LET'S ALL GO DOWN TOWN FOR DINNER!
WE THOUGHT YOU'D SAY THAT, TOO!

MICKEY FINN

GEE, UNCLE PHIL--I STAYED UP ALL NIGHT, WAITING FOR YOU TO COME BACK!
I WAITED FOR THE MORNING PAPERS, MICHAEL!--LOOK! I'M ALL OVER THE FRONT PAGE!
SHERIFF NABS
I WONDER WHAT THEY WOULD HAVE WRITTEN--IF THEY KNEW YOU REALLY HAD MISTAKEN HIM FOR MISS TITE'S BROTHER?
NOW, NOW, MICHAEL! WE AGREED TO FORGET ABOUT THAT!
OKAY--IT'S FORGOTTEN!
BOY-O-BOY! I WISH I COULD HEAR WHAT THEY'RE SAYIN' IN CLANCY'S RIGHT NOW!
SHERIFF FINN NAMED NOTORIOUS BURGLAR
THERE'S SOMETHIN' FISHY ABOUT IT, DUGAN!
THAT'S JUST WHAT I SAID TO MY WIFE!
FINN NAMED BURGLAR

DIXIE DUGAN

WELL--THIS IS AN HONOR, MISS GOLDIE
SO YOU'RE RUSSELL RAYMON, THE NOVELIST--
W-WON'T YOU SIT DOWN?
THANKS--NICE'N COZY HERE
I'VE HEARD SO MUCH ABOUT YOU, DEAR BOY REALLY?
I'VE DECIDED TO HAVE YOU WRITE A PLAY FOR ME--I CAN HELP YOU--WE CAN DO IT TOGETHER--

CHIEF WAHOO and STEVE ROPER

KEEP RINGIN' 'EM, OPERATOR!--THAT DOGGONE IVY MUST KEEP BANKER'S HOURS!
OH! GOOD MORNING, MISTER! I WAS JUST GIVING THESE GENTLEMEN COFFEE! WON'T YOU HAVE A CUP, TOO?
At this moment above Wahoo's very head!
MM-M!--(GROAN!)--LONGER I SLEEP--HEAVIER MY HEAD FEELS--!
AIR--IN THIS ROOM--THICK ENOUGH TO SLICE!--"GOT TO OPEN WINDOW MORE--!

WINNIE WINKLE

HELLO, SAILOR SMITH!
AVAST, MATEY! I HEAR THE SHIP OF MATRIMONY IS NOT GOING TO SAIL!
NO, THE WEDDING VOYAGE HAS BEEN CANCELLED, THANK GOODNESS!
YOU'RE LUCKY! THAT LITTLE SHRIMP IS TOO CONCEITED FOR ANY WOMAN--!
MR. PRISSY IS QUITE AN EGOTIST!
EGOTIST! SAY, THAT GUY OUGHT TO JOIN THE NAVY AND LET THE WORLD SEE HIM!!

KING OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED

GOOD GRIEF! KING'S FOUND A HORN BATOCHE USED TO CALL HIS DOGS...
THOSE MUTTS ARE HEADIN' BACK! HE'LL BE RIGHT ON MY TRAIL... MUSH, HUSKIES--MUSH!
HERE THEY COME, CHILI! WHEN THEY'RE ALL IN THE YARD CLOSE THE GATE!
...THEN IF YOU'LL LET THE FACTOR KNOW BATOCHE HAS BEEN MURDERED...I'LL BE HOT AFTER THAT KILLER!

CRANBERRY BOGGS

THE BOX--EET IS AFIRE!
BEIN' KILLED A LITTLE OR A LOT DON'T MAKE MUCH DIFFERENCE, I GUESS.
EGADS! SAVE MY BOX!!
OOWCH--THIS BOX BE GETTIN' HOTTER THAN A BOILED LOBSTER!
RUN! WE SIT ON TOP OF ZEE POUTING VOLCANO.
COME BACK HERE! HELP PUT OUT THIS FIRE, YE LILY-LIVERED LUBBER!
RUN! STRETCH ZEE LEGS!
FIE ON YE, LEAVING A POOR OLD SNEEZING MAN TO---- AH-AAA-

DOTTY

YEOW-W--OH--OH--
HORACE! WHAT ON EARTH'S THE MATTER?!!
SOMETHING WAS CHASING ME---
WHAT WAS IT?
OH--I CAN'T REMEMBER--
--BUT IF IT CATCHES ME NEXT TIME I'LL LET YOU KNOW--- Z-Z-Z-

PENNY

PENNY!
YES, FATHER.
IF YOU MUST PULL THE PAPER ALL APART, YOU MIGHT BE CONSIDERATE ENOUGH TO PUT IT BACK TOGETHER SO THAT OTHERS MAY READ IT.
I'M SORRY, FATHER.
HERE IT IS ALL TOGETHER.
THAT'S THE SPIRIT, THANK YOU.

SUPERMAN

ALL THESE WONDERFUL CATCHES--
--AND I'VE NEVER HAD A BID FROM THE N.Y. YANKEES!
SUPERMAN'S RESCUE OCCURS AT SUCH SPLIT-SECOND SWIFTNESS, HE IS ABLE TO DEPART UNSEEN...
A SUDDEN DRAFT OF AIR BUOYED ME UP!
IT'S UNBELIEVABLE!
BUT AS THE MAN OF STEEL RACES OFF...
WHAT'S THIS I HEAR?

PAWA Orders 20 Planes for $25,000,000

By S. Oliver Goodman

Purchase of 20 Boeing Stratocruisers for delivery beginning in November, 1946, was announced yesterday by Pan-American World Airways. The Stratocruiser is the air transport version of the B-29 Superfortress, will weigh 65 tons and carry 80 passengers.

William M. Allen, president of Boeing, said that more than $25,000,000 was involved in the transaction.

Franklin Gledhill, vice president of Pan-American, said the purchase resulted from demands for "the best possible American equipment" brought on by the foreign competition "we will face over the Atlantic."

Boeing officials said the Stratocruisers have a cruising range of 340 miles an hour and would provide eight hours and 33 minutes' service coast to coast over the transcontinental route for which Pan-American has applied to the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Bank to Pay Yule Savings

Christmas Savings Club checks for $273,068 will be mailed to 4000 members of the Industrial Bank on Saturday, Jesse H. Mitchell of the U st. institution reported yesterday. This is the largest amount ever distributed by the bank under this system.

Mitchell added that 6200 Yule books have been prepared for next year, based on the heavy demand last year, when the 4000 prepared books were snapped up. All other Washington banks discontinued the Christmas savings club in recent years.

Forecasts Further Uptrend

Low interest rates will prevail for at least several more years and the uptrend in security prices will continue for the next three or four years, in the opinion of Winslow B. VanDevanter.

Addressing local controllers at a dinner meeting in the Carlton Hotel, the Washington investment counselor, who is vice president of Lionel D. Edie & Co., also forecast an increase in premiums on new insurance policies.

Seven Named to ABA Groups

Seven Washington bankers have been appointed to committees of the American Bankers Association, President Frank C. Rathje announced yesterday. The ABA appointments follow:

A. Scott Offutt, vice president, Morris Plan Bank, State vice president; Wilmer J. Waller, president, Hamilton National Bank, executive committee; F. G. Addison, jr., president, Security Savings and Commercial Bank, chairman, committee on Federal legislative council, chairman, Federal legislative council, and State chairman, State Legislative Council; John A. Reilly, president, Second Ntaional Bank, committee on Federal legislation and committee on war bond drives; Robert V. Fleming, president, Riggs National Bank, chairman, committee on Treasury war borrowing; Thomas J. Groom, president, Bank of Commerce and Savings, Victory Loan chairman for District of Columbia; Nelson B. O'Neal, vice president, Riggs National Bank, chairman, special committee on war bond redemption.

Two New ATA Directors

The Air Transport Association in an annual meeting here yesterday elected two new directors, W. A. Patterson, Chicago, president of United Air Lines, and C. E. Woolman, Atlanta, vice president of Delta Air Lines. They replaced Paul Collins, Boston, president of Northeast Air Lines, whose company is being merged with Pennsylvania Central Airlines, and Tom Braniff, Dallas, president of Braniff Airways.

Penney's Net Off Sharply

Pennsylvania Railroad Co. yesterday reported October net operating income of $6,257,258, a drop of $3,796,943 as compared with the same month last year. Net operating income of $85,119,61 for the fi9rst 10 months slumped $7,306,777.
